Carmel schools head sets sights on retirement

By DAVID LELAND

THE MAN some have compared to wise King Solomon will retire as head of the Carmel Unified School District this August.

CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise, 65, cites age and additional career opportunities as reasons for his departure.

"When I hit 65, I realized my concentration would be inhibited," says Infelise, who came to the district six years ago from Gilroy. "Therefore, it's time to turn the reins over."

While it is not official, CUSD boardmember Hilton Bialek told The Pine Cone that Vance

Baldwin, assistant superintendent, will be named superintendent sometime this summer.

"Vance has been around a long time; we're very confident with him," said Bialek, who has served on the board since Infelise came to the district. Bialek sings nothing but praises for Infelise.

"He's just been an outstanding superintendent," said Bialek, who credits Infelise with establishing a child care center at Carmelo School and garnering increased state funding for the CUSD. "The district has been very fortunate."

For Baldwin, the step up to superintendent is a bittersweet one.

"I'll miss his (Infelise's) spirit and enthusiasm," said Baldwin, who came to the district with Infelise, having worked with him for 16 of the past 22 years. "I've always tried to learn from Bob. Our styles are different, but I've tried to observe how he interacts with people and how he uses his time."

While Baldwin describes his management style as more of a hands-on, day-to-day operations approach, it should be noted that, if named superintendent, he could alter that form to adapt to that position.

To be sure, CUSD officials hope that the era of good feeling marked by Infelise's tenure will continue long after he is gone.

For example, CUSD teachers enjoy yearly contract negotiations that begin and end on a happy note.

"It's been a feeling of mutual respect," says Jim Agan, lead negotiator for the 118-member Association of Carmel Teachers. "He (Infelise) is honestly and genuinely concerned about his employees — that promotes a very healthy relationship."

It should be noted, however, that Infelise took over a school district reeling from political in-fuendos and mired in controversy.

When hired in May of 1985, Infelise saw three members of the board of education facing a recall election.

Thus Infelise entered a district and community divided.

Infelise's breezy management style lent itself perfectly to the barbs and insults being traded between school officials and the community.

"I'm extremely people-centered, truly eclectic," says Infelise, of his method of working with people. "It's (management style) not dominated by goals."

TO SET the scene for when Infelise took office, consider that, in addition to the recall election, he also faced the challenge of a closely knit staff, which harbored resentment against Infelise for being named to that position in the first place. They favored a local representative.

"He came in at a time when healing was needed," says Baldwin. "That's one of his strengths and he did it very well."

Using his credo of attempting to fill vacancies from within the system and finding ideal educational candidates for additional slots, Infelise quickly brought the district back together.

To say the Infelise instills confidence and enthusiasm in his staff would be an understatement.

"He's wonderful to work for, he's a lot of fun and I enjoy my job," says Kim Spindler, secretary to the superintendent. "I'll miss him; he's a great boss."

So what's Infelise's secret? He'll have you believe that he merely lets things unfold.

"Serendipity has to be an accepted part of managing an enterprise," says Infelise.

On further examination, however, it appears that solving problems that plague CUSD are a snap, compared to some of the hurdles Infelise has tackled during his 41-year career.

"My superintendent was stabbed right outside my door," says Infelise, referring to his educational life in the '50s, which began in the rough-and-tumble East Bay. "I developed street smarts in districts that had a greater diversity than here in Carmel."

An easy-going administrator, Infelise surely has the ability to stand up to detractors.

"In confrontive situations I get done what needs to get done," he says. "But you don't let people lose their dignity."

In the world of administration, school or otherwise, Infelise's honesty is refreshing.

"I have a genuine liking of people and a genuine desire to be liked," he says. "The desire to be liked is not a weakness when it is balanced with the ability to make decisions necessary to get things done."

AFTER SERVING as CUSD superintendent for the past six years, Bob Infelise will step down this August. (Gregg Wutke photo.)

In looking back over the past six years, Infelise says he is proud that the district has set new, high standards in the areas of student test scores.

He is also proud of increased student interest in the 2,166-student district.

"When I hit 65, I realized my concentration would be inhibited. Therefore, it's time to turn the reins over."

— Bob Infelise

As a last challenge, Infelise will lead the district into the June parcel tax election, in hopes of garnering money to upgrade CUSD capital facilities.

"We haven't been able to generate the finances to keep up the physical facilities and school buses," says Infelise, adding that adoption of the measure would close out his career quite nicely. "I think I will have accomplished those major things that needed to be accomplished."

Infelise is not actually retiring in the true sense of the word. Instead, he will continue consulting with American Overseas Schools in the Mediterranean area.

Also, he will consult with the CUSD regarding its health-care program, which he has successfully engineered into a cost-effective plan.

He offers sage advice to the district: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it. Based on my judgment, the system is in a pretty good place now — all it needs is some fine tuning."

FAR election: council embroiled in pros and cons of sticky issue

By MAC McDONALD

THE LOMA Prieta earthquake so shook the area that it wasn't until almost two months later that the Carmel City Council could attempt to consider revisions to the city's design codes.

The council set up a special meeting for Dec. 14, 1989 to continue a meeting that had been abruptly interrupted by the massive Oct. 17 earthquake. At the time the council was hearing public testimony on proposed changes to the design codes, including building site coverage, open space, setbacks and an issue that would later prove to be an anathema to the council in the coming year — floor area ratio, also known by its acronym: FAR.

Part II

At the center of the issue was a difference of opinion on how Carmel could save its renowned "village character" — in simple terms, by either strict numerical guidelines or by design review.

Citizen of Year

ENID SALES was named "Citizen of the Year" by the Carmel Residents Association Sunday. For more on the honor, turn to page 12.

Opponents of numerical guidelines claimed that the restrictions stifled creativity and individuality, do not take into consideration differences in building sites, and does nothing to curtail bad or unattractive designs.

Proponents of numerical guidelines maintained that numerical restrictions are the only way to impose the codes fairly and objectively and that they give a clear indication of what is and isn't allowed.

The planning commission was split 4-3 over numerical versus design review approaches, the majority in favor of changing the numerical restrictions.

That put the issue squarely in the laps of the council. But the council would at first be concerned over broader issues than what specific figure the FAR should be. At that point several numbers were discussed in relation to floor area ratio — some even as restrictive as 35 percent — but specific arguments over FAR had not yet reached the boiling point.

Instead the council was concerned with the broader issue of "village character," something that would prove to be a sticking point since the city did not have a document, even the General Plan, that specifically outlined was that was.

"The policies of the General Plan are very broad and deal only with general concepts of mass, scale and community character," a staff report to the council read. "What is village character? Do we have a true concept of what that term, so frequently used, really means? Has the General Plan broken down the components of scale, mass and neighborhood character so there is a broad acceptance in meaning?"

The answer apparently was no.

But in addition to opinions by the planning commission, staff and residents at the hearing, the council also received a report from an informal committee that outlined steps the committee felt the council should take to address perceived problems in the city codes.

The committee was composed of then-Carmel Residents Association president and later city councilwoman Barbara Brooks, builder Chris Tescher, Northeast Neighbors Association president Barry Smith and builders Fred and Sharon Slabaugh.

The report to the council — in the form of a letter — advocated a design element for the general plan that "can focus the community's understanding of what constitutes good design for Carmel-by-the-Sea, and just as importantly, what does not."

The group recommended: The creation of a separate design review board consisting of a "diverse" representation of the community.

A funny place

Dear Editor:

Carmel is a funny place. Householders who doubtless are as nice as the usual local resident put threatening messages outside their homes.

"Don't even think of parking here," some signs say, with an implication of physical harm. Other signs draw a line in the sand and leave almost everybody on the other side of it. "Only our dearest friends," these signs proclaim, "may park in this reserved place."

What do these good folk do when they go away from home? Fold their car up and put it in their pocket? Surely they wouldn't park in front of someone else's house, would they?

Carmel is a funny place. I love it.

Lack of courage

Dear Editor:

Neither of the two alternatives available to the voters in the upcoming election on Measure E, the residential floor area ratio (FAR), really addresses the problem of houses that threaten to degrade the residential character of the community. But that is not the most important reason to vote against the measure.

If the proposition is passed, the floor area ratio can never be modified or repealed except by another direct vote of the people. This is not only a clumsy and costly way to deal with land use matters, but it diminishes and complicates the zoning powers of the city. It is a cowardly move by a city council that is too "chicken" to face the duty conveyed upon them to carry out the public's business.

Anyone seeking the prestige of election to the city council should also be ready to shoulder the responsibility of making tough decisions, and the lack of courage displayed here should make voters think again in the future.

For the moment, however, the defeat of Measure E will have to do.

Photographic confusion

Dear Editor:

The Photography Center, although only in its third year of organization, perpetuates the finest tradition of community and cultural participation in our village of Carmel-by-the-Sea continuing the programs of The Friends of Photography started by Ansel Adams over 25 years ago. I was dismayed to read of the present confusion that has occurred.

Having served for many years on The Community and Cultural Commission, perhaps my perspective would be helpful.

The Community and Cultural Commission understood that there was a lack of space for the administration and staff. We were given to understand that the addition of one small office

IN A democracy, when a conflict exists between two viewpoints and that issue is put to the vote of the people, it's expected that the voters will be given a choice between the two.

For years we've made jokes and derided the communist style of "voting" — where the hapless voters are either given no choice at all or a "choice" between the lesser of two evils.

If you'd like to witness an example of the latter in action, just examine the labored and improbable path taken by the city of Carmel's Measure E — the so-called FAR election set for March 5.

At one point in this tale — after it was determined by a less-than-decisive city council that it would put the issue to the vote of the people — council members agreed to give the voters a choice.

Here's how that ballot measure, approved by a 4-1 vote on Oct. 2, 1990 (with Councilman James Wright dissenting), read:

"The General Plan and the Residential Zoning Ordinance shall specify a maximum floor area ratio in the residential area of one of the following: 40 percent or 45 percent."

Clear, simple and most importantly, offering voters a choice — 40 or 45 percent. True, the measure failed to point out that the General Plan currently specifies a 45 percent FAR and that the measure should have read: "shall amend the General Plan and Residential Zoning Ordinance," but that would apparently be too much to ask of a council majority already predisposed to favoring a 40 percent FAR.

However unbalanced, the measure did offer a clear-cut choice to discerning voters.

But the council couldn't leave well enough alone. At the request of one unsatisfied council member, the council was asked to "reconsider" the wording of the measure at its November meeting.

This was done ostensibly to "simplify" a ballot measure that was already in its simplest form. Here's how the council majority (in a 3-2 split vote), saw fit to "simplify" it:

"Shall the General Plan of Carmel-by-the-Sea and Ordinance No. 90-08 specify that 'Building intensity in the single-family residential area may not exceed a 40 percent floor area ratio...?'"

In the process of "simplifying" the measure the council majority removed all reference to a 45 percent FAR, thus removing any choice the voters may have had. They even needed more words to do it!

Not only does the measure not even mention 45 percent FAR, it too fails to mention that the General Plan already specifies a 45 percent FAR and that, again, the measure should correctly read: "Shall the General Plan of Carmel-by-the-Sea be amended to specify that...?"

Why couldn't the measure have read: "...Building intensity in the single-family residential area may not exceed a 45 percent floor area ratio...?" Heavens no, that would mean the measure would be biased toward the 45 FAR, and the council majority wouldn't want that to happen.

To their credit, Mayor Jean Grace and Councilman Bob Fischer saw the sham in this so-called "simplification" — obfuscation, yes, manipulation, yes, but simplification, certainly not. Grace hit the nail on the head when she termed the council majority's action "deceitful."

The city is spending $8,000 to $10,000 of the taxpayers' money on this wholly one-sided and misleading ballot measure pushed through by a less-than-forthright council majority. It should be a simple matter for astute Carmel voters to choose how to vote on Measure E come March 5th.

THINK HEART disease only affects the elderly?

Think again.

Each year about 180,000 Americans under age 65 die of cardiovascular diseases, according to the American Heart Association.

Scheduled FAR debate becomes one-sided affair

By DAVID LELAND

TALK ABOUT a one-sided discussion.

During its monthly membership meeting this week at The Crossroads Community Room, the Carmel Board of Realtors heard a convincing argument from the Coalition for Carmel's Future supporting Carmel retaining its current floor area ratio percentage of 45 percent.

However, Stephen Poohar, a member of the CBR board of directors, told the audience that he originally "undertook to stage a debate between the opponents and proponents of Measure E."

"I didn't wish to debate because I didn't expect the audience would be persuaded one way or another. I want to do it (explain his FAR position) before people who will be actually voting on this."

— James Wright

Measure E seeks to amend the city's Land Use Code with regard to residential design and development; the Carmel General Plan currently sets the floor area ratio — the percentage of the total square footage of the residence as opposed to the total square footage of the lot — at 45 percent for lots between 4,000 and 6,500 square feet.

If adopted, Measure E would lower the FAR to 40 percent, which translates to about 200 square feet on a 4,000-square-foot home.

The issue has divided the city into warring camps, with realtors most often siding with those favoring increased living space, while opponents argue that Carmel is losing its village character to large homes.

"I'll try not to take this personally," quipped Poohar, regarding the absence of those favoring the 40 percent FAR. Poohar told the audience that he also tried to contact Carmel Residents Association officials, but calls were not returned.

However, CRA President Jim Holliday denied having been contacted.

"I heard he (Kramer) was going to call me, but I did not receive a call from him," Holliday said, adding that he surely would have called him back if a message had been left.

Originally, Carmel City Councilmembers Jim Wright and Barbara Brooks were supposed to take part in the presentation, with Nancy Green, a representative with the Monterey chapter of the League of Women Voters, moderating the affair.

Wright, Brooks and Councilmember Ken White have all endorsed the measure on the March 5 ballot. White, who teaches at Monterey High School, cited his job as a reason for not attending.

Mayor Jean Grace, who with Councilman Bob Fischer supports the current FAR, was in attendance at this week's CBR gathering.

While Wright said that, while he initially accepted the invitation, he opted out after learning that there would be a debate.

"I didn't wish to debate because I didn't expect the audience would be persuaded one way or another," said Wright, adding that he believes many CBR members are not Carmel residents and will not be voting in the upcoming election. "I want to do it (explain his FAR position) before people who will be actually voting on this."

Wright said he plans to air his views during a CRA-sponsored forum scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 20, at the Carmel Woman's Club.

"I only want to go through this once; I don't want to develop presentations," he said, adding that he does not feel compelled to be understood. "I'm not campaigning for anything."

Brooks, however, said that she understood that Wright was getting a non-elected person to speak at the forum.

'Measure E will stymie creativity and the revitalization of our neighborhoods. It's too restraining. It's an overreaction to some building that has taken place.'

— Don Kramer

She added that she believed it would be inappropriate for a councilmember to debate a lay person in a public forum.

"I was feeling a little uncomfortable with the situation," she said.

Brooks said that she believes that there are real estate agents who acknowledge that a reduced FAR would benefit Carmel.

Holliday said that, at any rate, he would have declined to speak to realtors.

The board of realtors meeting is "not a public meeting by anybody's stretch of the imagination," he said, adding that the 8:30 a.m. meeting would be inconvenient for the general public. "I don't think we (CRA) should be obliged in any way to attend a non-public meeting."

Meanwhile, Holliday said the CRA's upcoming meeting could also be a one-sided affair.

Originally Holliday said he asked Grace, Fischer, Bob Evans and Helen Wilson, who also signed the ballot argument opposing the measure, to select a spokesperson to present arguments at the upcoming forum.

Thus far, he said, all have declined.

Holliday said he also contacted Kramer, who told him that he would likely be out of town on business on that date.

IT WOULD appear, however, that this week's CBR meeting was composed principally of those in direct opposition to Brooks, Wright and White.

"Measure E will stymie creativity and the revitalization of our neighborhoods," said Don Kramer, chairman of the 800-member Coalition for Carmel's Future. "It's too restraining. It's an overreaction to some building that has taken place."

Kramer acknowledged that there are some homes in Carmel that seem out of character. But, he said, that has more to do with design than size.

Kramer said design guidelines are already in place and that "the planning commission is really getting strict."

Kramer painted a gloomy picture of Carmel architecture if Measure E is adopted.

To save the 60 to 100 feet entailed in a stairwell, for example, many residents would abandon two-story homes. That, he said, which would create "boxy" residences.

Kramer said a town full of one-story affairs would resemble tract-housing developments in Southern California.

"We need to have plenty of vitality and design," said the retired IBM executive. "We don't want to constrain architects to design the same house for every lot."

Kramer said he takes issue with FAR proponents, who paint their opponents as being solely real estate agents and developers.

"We feel there is a silent majority out there

Absentee voting period for March 5 election now open

THE ABSENTEE ballot period for Carmel's March 5 election on the Floor Area Ratio has opened.

Voters received sample ballots beginning the week of Feb. 11. An application for an absentee ballot will be printed on the back of the sample ballot. Voters wishing to vote by absentee ballot may request a ballot by completing the application or by writing a letter to the county Election Department requesting a ballot.

Letters requesting a ballot must include the voter's name, residence address, the address to which the ballot is to be mailed, and the voter's signature.

The Election Department is precluded by law from issuing a ballot based on a telephone request. All requests must be made in writing.

Requests should be sent to: Election Department, PO Box 1848, Salinas, CA 93902, and must be received no later than Tuesday, Feb. 26. Voted ballots must be received no later than the close of polls on election day.

(Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.)

All ballots for the March 5 election will be counted at the Monterey County Election Department located at 201 Main St., Salinas. Ballot processing will begin at 8 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

that need to be educated," said Kramer, referring to simple homeowners that could have redesign plans yanked out from under them.

Moreover, if Measure E passes, Carmel could lose out to families that need more living space.

"We need to be able to attract families who are used to larger homes," said Kramer, referring to those relocating from areas such as San Jose.

Beginning next week, Del Monte Realty and Mitchell Group will donate their offices for a telephone campaign blitz.

Volunteers will call voters reminding them to vote March 5 and to vote "No" on Measure E.

Commissioner questions need for out-of-town conference

By DAVID LELAND

DESPITE THE urgings of Carmel Planning Commission Chairwoman Carla Ramsey not to attend an upcoming seminar in San Francisco, the majority of commissioners will make the trip.

Ramsey, who questions the need for taking part in the Feb. 26-March 2 "Making Cities Livable" conference, told The Pine Cone that commissioners' time could, perhaps, be better spent in endeavors that would directly benefit Carmel.

"I really think that certain seminars are very useful," Ramsey said. "However, I'm not going to attend this one because...it does not particularly pertain to Carmel-by-the-Sea's size and character."

A more appropriate seminar, Ramsey said, was last month's seminar on zoning issues presented in Monterey by noted land-use attorney Dan Curtin.

"I was sorry that more people from the commission and council were unable to attend," said Ramsey, who attended the seminar with City Atty. Don Freeman and resident Howard Nieman, Jr.

Ramsey also questioned the city's wisdom in spending money for such a venture at a time when revenues are down and a shortfall expected.

"It's an expensive seminar," Ramsey said. "Maybe it isn't the most useful...expenditure of city funds."

'It's an expensive seminar. Maybe it isn't the most useful...expenditure of city funds.'

— Carla Ramsey

However, the seminars's two principal organizers, Suzanne Crowhurst Lennard and Henry Lennard, say they lowered the registration fee from $460 to $85 to make the gathering affordable.

"We only did it because we live in Carmel and they (city representatives) can learn something that is of value to them," said Mrs. Lennard.

Planning commissioners attending the conference are Phil Coniglio, Brian Congleton, Jack Kennedy and Stephen Poohar. Carmel Councilwoman Barbara Brooks will attend, as will City Administrator Doug Schmitz, who will only spend one day at the conference.

City planning staff making the trip include Donna Pruett, Brian Roseth and Molly Erickson.

The cost per night for each person attending the conference will be $145, according to a city spokesperson.

Carmel Planning Commissioners Lindsay Hanna and Barbara Lysle will not take part in the seminar.

While Hanna is attending to family business, Lysle said she is already putting sufficient time into learning how to be a planning commissioner.

"It's just one more thing to do; it's more than I want to take on," she said. "(Also) I have heard it was designed for larger cities."

MEANWHILE, THE Lennards, who presented a similar seminar in Carmel last year, defended those making the trek to San Francisco.

"It's a matter of immersing yourself in a way of looking at cities and towns," said Mr. Lennard, adding that there will be experts from around the world in attendance. "For us, this is a labor of love; we find that people need to look at cities and towns as a system."

Besides, the Lennards say, many times it is not a particular paper that will open a person's eyes, but a friendship or contact made at the conference.

About 400 people are expected to take part in the conference.

Commissioner Coniglio told The Pine Cone that it's high time that overworked and underpaid commissioners be given a perk.

"The one time the city does something nice for us, people complain," said Coniglio, who puts in about 20 hours of work per week on commission projects. "It's not like it's all fun and games — let's go party in San Francisco."

'The one time the city does something nice for us, people complain. It's not like it's all fun and games — let's go party in San Francisco.'

— Phil Coniglio

The Lennards acknowledge that Carmel could benefit from a meeting of experts who would concentrate solely on making Carmel a more livable city.

"We would welcome the opportunity to do something for Carmel," Mr. Lennard said. "If we did something on Carmel, it would focus on specific issues."

He added that such an endeavor would be more costly than city representatives attending a conference in San Francisco.

Peace rally set for Devendorf

By MAC McDONALD

THE FIRST rally sponsored by a Monterey County coalition of peace groups has been scheduled for Carmel's Devendorf Park Saturday, Feb. 16.

"Speak Out for Peace," organized by the Peace Coalition of Monterey County, has been scheduled for noon to 4 p.m. at the park, located at Junipero and Ocean in Carmel.

Speakers, poets, performers and concerned citizens will assemble at the park for an opportunity to express their views and concerns for peace in the Middle East.

A coalition of 17 county peace groups held its first meeting in late January and decided to make Carmel its first location for a peace rally.

"Because a lot of members are Carmel people, we thought maybe it was time to do something in Carmel," said Joyce Vandevere, coalition chairwoman and president of the Monterey branch of Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. "It will be a low-key event in the spirit of Carmel."

Vandevere said the event will be a "soap box-type arrangement," with speakers signing up beforehand and given 2 minutes to give their speeches at the park. The group obtained a permit from the city of Carmel to hold the event.

"We want to make it a pleasant experience, but not just a party," said Vandevere, adding that those already killed or wounded in the war will be memorialized or acknowledged during the day.

The date also coincides with a national date in which peace groups across the country are calling for a national mobilization for peace.

Vandevere said the coalition was formed when several peace groups on the peninsula found themselves working together on a variety of projects ever since the prospect of war ignited with the invasion of Kuwait last August.

"We've been networking a long time," said Vandevere, adding that Mez Benson, a former school principal and civic leader, suggested to her that a coalition be formed opposing the war in the Gulf.

After 32 years with CUSD, he finds it hard to retire

By DAVID LELAND

IF ED Goodrick isn't careful, he may wind up working as hard in retirement as he has for the past 32 years with the CUSD transportation department.

While Goodrick, 58, officially ended his tenure Jan. 31, the lanky mechanic will continue certifying bus drivers with the district until he is replaced.

'The leadership function will be replaced ASAP. But finding people the quality of Ed Goodrick will be difficult.'

— Supt. Bob Infelise

That, he says, could be as far away as this fall. "A lot of people in the district have been loyal to me," says Goodrick who, as superintendent of operations, has overseen the district's fleet of buses, grounds maintenance, and custodial functions since April of 1958. "I'll stay until I'm replaced as a trainer."

Training and certifying bus drivers, alone, has become a bureaucratic nightmare, says Goodrick, who adds that running the department by himself is next to impossible.

"The job has grown to where one man can no longer do it," says Goodrick, who has seen the fleet grow from two to 17 buses and from a local affair to a 594-square-mile district.

"I'm bailing out."

Until a replacement can be found, however, Goodrick's job is being divided between transportation foreman Buster Billante and maintenance foreman Terry West.

CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise says he is well aware that the job's responsibilities have grown and appreciates Goodrick's dedication.

"The leadership function will be replaced ASAP," he says. "But finding people the quality of Ed Goodrick will be difficult."

Indeed, Goodrick's easy-going nature has enabled the department to achieve stability rivaling bedrock.

"He's a kid," jokes lifelong Carmel resident Goodrick, referring to Billante, who has been with the department for a "mere" 28 years.

Sue Hall, a 30-year CUSD transportation worker says she is sorry to see Goodrick go.

"We don't want him to leave," she says, "but we understand why."

Goodrick, who terms himself as the district's first "grease monkey," actually began with the department as an auxiliary bus driver in 1953 upon graduation from Carmel High School, after CUSD annexed Carmel Highlands.

Always fascinated with machinery, Goodrick honed his mechanical skills in auto shop at the high school and while serving in the U.S. Army motor pool during the Korean War.

GOODRICK HAD little idea where he was heading when he returned to Carmel in 1957 from the San Joaquin Valley to help out the department.

When former transportation superintendent Desmond Fitzgerald suffered a heart attack, however, Goodrick dropped his geology studies at Fresno State University.

"I just dropped school and stepped in temporarily," remembers Goodrick, who was the man in charge after Fitzgerald died. "I agreed to stay on until they replaced me."

But Goodrick quickly became indispensable — not only did he command respect, but he was also a good worker.

"I've enjoyed being the first one in the trenches when the water main breaks," says Goodrick, who lives in Cachagua with wife Monica, who drives the CUSD's Cachagua bus route.

It is a well-known fact that Goodrick's knowledge of the district's capital facilities will be hard to replace.

"He knows every shut-off valve in the district," says Billante, "so we'll have to call him anyway."

And while a broken water main may still get Goodrick's blood boiling, the over-aged bus fleet has become a constant reminder of the cutbacks suffered as a result of Proposition 13.

Goodrick appears to take the funding cuts as a personal affront, and bemoans the use of 20-year-old buses and the reduced number of routes.

For example, buses used to be available for students to ride home in the late afternoon after sports. Also, field trips were also more prevalent.

CUSD SUPERINTENDENT of Transportation Ed Goodrick has retired after 32 years with the district, but will stay on in a training capacity. (David Leland photo.)

"Things like that have made it hard on the students," says Goodrick, who attended the old Sunset School.

So what will Goodrick do when he finally does retire? Why, tinker with used cars, what else would you expect from a retired mechanic?

Besides, nobody's keeping score, as can be seen on the motto written on his new coffee mug, "I'm retired — I can take my coffee break whenever I feel like it."

Council embroiled in FAR issue

To preserve large lots, the city might consider becoming an "active participant" in purchasing the properties, removing the lot lines and reselling the property.

And last, but not least, it recommended:

No changes to the basic existing design standards. The committee's argument for that recommendation? "We do not believe significant change to the existing code will result in improved design. Taken to the extreme, tighter restrictions only lead to uniformity and monotony — the very opposite of Carmel quality we are trying to achieve. We believe that these numerical standards are not the root cause of the design problems in the R-1 district."

The council acknowledged the committee's report but took no action on it. The Dec. 14 meeting instead focused on the establishment of a design review board or commission, similar to those in Pacific Grove and Monterey.

Arguments for and against establishment of such a board were heard at that meeting, with builders and some residents calling for a board and planning commissioners downplaying the idea, saying the commission could handle design review by itself. The commission even went as far as saying it would re-establish the commission's ad-hoc design review committee that had been underutilized the past few years.

Be that as it may, it was at this meeting that the specific issue of FAR started to make its presence known.

Carmel resident and current planning commissioner Lindsay Hanna told the council that residential design — and specifically those homes that appeared to "loom" on the lot, were too close to adjacent homes or had the appearance of expensive suburban homes — was becoming "a favorite topic at Carmel dinner parties."

If Hanna had a hand in getting the fire started,

City Councilman Ken White fanned the flames:

"I think we're staggering around in the wilderness and just talking about the problem," said White after the meeting. "We really need to decide how big a house you can put on a 4,000-square-foot lot. I think that most people feel the houses are too damn big. We have to strengthen the ordinance; it cannot be subjective."

Builder Tescher was quick to respond.

"I would bet if you put a 1,600-square-foot house next to a 1,800-square-foot house, they would both look the same," he said, referring to the talked-about reduction of the FAR from 45 to 40 percent. "Doesn't fit in with village character? They always use that, but what do they mean by village character? I think they first have to define the problem, if there is a problem. Once they find out what the problem is, then they can get a better handle on how to correct it."

But for the time being the council opted to leave design review to the planning commission. On the matter of FAR, the council was just getting started. But the council, in early 1990, had bigger fish to fry: consideration of an ordinance regulating subordinate or "granny" units and a pivotal April 10 city council election.

The city council and planning commission saw fit to meet twice in a joint meeting in the early months of 1990 to go over revisions to the design code.

The commission itself met in late March to not only consider revisions, but to reinstate solar rights, private views, privacy and "boxing-in" neighbors, those portions of the design review that were removed by the commission (and approved by the council), only two years earlier.

At these meetings, concerns generated by residents over massive homes predominating their lots was often brought up. Many pointed to new large homes that were going up in the area of the former Kinnoull estate along Junipero and Torres avenues between 10th and 11th.

That troublesome area, design review in general and FAR in specific was soon to become an issue that would divide candidates vying for council seats in the April 10 election.

The election campaign pitted not only members of the council itself, but a planning commissioner too. Councilwoman Elinor Laiolo threw her hat into the ring to oppose incumbent mayor Jean Grace, while incumbent councilmember Bob Fischer had to contend with challengers Carla Ramsey, chairman of the planning commission, and political newcomer Barbara Brooks, who was president of the Carmel Residents Association and served as a member of the Citizens Committee for R-1 Design.

While several issues dominated the election campaign rhetoric — traffic, parking, Hatton Canyon, water, historic preservation and open space — design review was perhaps the most contentious and heated.

But even with all the hubbub over design review it was until well after the election that the city council — now with a new member — was able to get down to the business of design review — and FAR in particular.

(Next week we'll examine the long and often labored path the council took to arrive at an election to determine the outcome of FAR.)

for Peace, and Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, Monterey Branch.

In addition to the event in Carmel, a "Give Peace a Chance" concert and poetry reading will be held at 7:30 p.m. that same evening (Feb. 16) at Portofino Cafe, at Pacific Grove Plaza, 620 Lighthouse in Pacific Grove. Later in the month, Feb. 27, a panel discussion on environmental concerns and consequences of the Gulf war will be held at the Monterey Conference Center, also sponsored by the coalition.

For more information about the rally in Carmel, contact the Peace Coalition of Monterey County at 372-8887.

Landlord-tenant subcommittees to meet

CARMEL'S NEWLY formed Landlord/Tenant Committee's two subcommittees has scheduled the second of two meetings for today (Thursday).

The Landlord/Tenant Relationships and the General Plan/Commercial Zoning subcommittees will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 14 at Carmel City Hall, located on the east side of Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

The Landlord/Tenant Committee was formed to serve as a forum to encourage dialogue among landlords, tenants and the city.

The public is invited to attend the meeting. For more information, call Carmel City Hall at 624-2781.

would be of great help and perhaps that room would come if the Friends of Photography were to vacate.

In thinking of this past dilemma, I would beg the commission and administrative staff to take a very close look at the wasted space across the hallway from the office. This space has not been used to its fullest degree. There should be a re-evaluation of the present city administrative area and a new design to enhance the entrance and utilize all the square footage that could be available.

With the expenditure of monies more precious now and the tightening on hiring of employees, surely there must be a way to expand administrative space without throwing a very fine cultural entity out of business.

The Photography Center cannot exist in a room 10 feet by 20 feet — there would be no space for even the photographs to hang and the fire commissioner would be in an absolute lather if he saw more than four people in the center at the same.

Joyce S. Wright
Past Cultural Commissioner

Profound reaction

Dear Editor:

Dear Mrs. Wasley:

I saw you the other night during your vigil. I have been describing to anyone who will listen my profound reaction to your being there.

First I thought — I want to do that!

Second — What a lot of courage that act takes.

Third — She must be awfully cold.

Fourth — As I began to digest the vision, I remembered the mothers of the Plaza de Mayo in Argentina who, having nothing more to lose, gathered, counter to their culture, to protest to the world the disappearance and death of their children. You are surely a sister of las Madres.

Thank you. You encourage me to try in my own way to express my grief and horror of the war.

Susan Long Carmel

The right note

Dear Editor:

I want to thank you very much for your editorial of Jan. 24th.

It hit the right note. Sometimes you have to jar the powers-that-be and change their thinking and wake them up.

The city godfathers the last couple of years forget what makes our city go.

Businesspeople are very important to all cities and we can't forget it — we have to keep them in business to make our city survive.

With all the vacant business properties in town it seems rather ridiculous to keep the Eastwood building empty because of some frivolous city regulations since it could be rented so as to get tax money.

Also, our city godfathers must be careful spending our money. Keep out of the real estate business as much as possible, which our godfathers running the city do not seem to realize.

City parks remove property from the tax rolls. With economic conditions as they are now, the last thing we need is another park where the Murphy house is. We have too many parks now! Maintenance costs a lot of money.

Also, thank you very much for all the plugs for Meals on Wheels. We get calls every time you run an article. We really do appreciate it.

Chuck Poland Carmel

P.S. I still say the Murphy house in absolutely UGLY!

Chinese New Year

If YOU'RE looking for foreign flavor but cautious about where to find it, head for the safe port of San Francisco where Chinese New Year will be officially celebrated Feb. 15 to March 3.

The thrill of seeing the block-long Chinese dragon and its parade of fire cracker-throwing revelers loudly celebrating the Year of the Ram, is an experience the entire family will remember for a long time.

Although Feb. 15 is a Chinese New Year's Day, most of the action begins Feb. 23 with an outdoor pageant and ceremony marking the beginning of the celebration at Union Square. The fun starts at noon.

The colorful parade, officially known as the San Francisco Chronicle Chinese New Year Parade, begins at 6 p.m. on March 2 at Market and Second streets. And it's free.

There will be floats, towering Oriental deities, figures from Chinese legend, hundreds of costumed marchers and — of course — Miss Chinatown and her court.

For those who really want to get into the festivities of Chinese New Year, there is the Miss Chinatown Coronation and Ball on March 1 at the Westin St. Francis Hotel. The actual beauty pageant takes place on Feb. 23 at the Masonic Auditorium, 1111 California St. Ticket prices range from $10 to $50.

Especially for the kids is the Children's Kite Festival at Pier 19 on Feb. 24 from noon to 4 p.m. It's also free. That morning there is the YMCA 8K Chinatown Fun Run that starts at Portsmouth Square. Call the YMCA at (415) 982-4412 for entry information.

For information about any of these events call the Chinese New Year Festival Committee at (415) 391-9680.

Depending on the budget, there are a couple of ways to fully enjoy Chinese New Year in San Francisco by making it an overnight stay.

In keeping with the Asian flavor of the event, the Mandarin Oriental has a "Good Fortune Package" that is difficult to resist. At $165 per night, guests can stay in one of the hotel's deluxe view rooms; or at $250 a Mandarin Room junior suite with its spectacular views from the bath.

Either accommodation includes a welcome Chinese jasmine tea in room, souvenir silk slippers, Good Fortune welcome basket and two complimentary cable car tickets for transportation to Chinatown. The Mandarin Oriental is conveniently located at 222 Sansome St. Check with your travel agent.

If the small, intimate hotel is more attractive, try the Juliana, Vintage Court, Carlton or Tuscan Inn. They are all located near the Chinese New Year activities and are offering rates from $59 to $85.

Two hotels we have tried are the Juliana and Vintage Court. Both are attractive, well-appointed hotels that give a feeling of peaceful refuge after a day of street-hiking around Union Square. The larger, more commercial, neighboring hotels with their busy lobbies can't compete with the intimacy of these little establishments and their friendly staffs.

Parking is easily arranged at either hotel, which makes walking to Chinatown — just a cou-

THE GODS MUST BE CRAZY

Were the gods angry at the Crosby Foundation for allowing the tournament to be renamed? For not stopping Mrs. Crosby from removing Bing's name from this long-standing event?

If weather was any indicator, "someone up there was really angry." The wind blew, the rains came, the crowds were sparse, and who suffered? Local charities took it on the chin! We love AT&T but that Crosby name is magic. Ask Lee Trevino who said, "I don't care if it's The Crosby, the Nathaniel and Harry Crosby or the Crosby-AT&T, they have to get that Crosby name back on this tournament."

ple of blocks downhill — relatively painless. Both the Juliana and Vintage Court are on Bush, near Grant.

For the economy-minded there is the Carlton, at $59. It's been recently refurbished and is at 1075 Sutter, or less than six blocks from Union Square — that's legitimate cab distance. For the family wishing to take in Pier 39, try the Tuscan Inn just two blocks from Fisherman's Wharf. No cab necessary.

Getting off the beaten path in Hawaii: For those desiring a closer look at an erupting volcano, there is the Akamai Volcano Tour. Adventurers are driven as close as possible to fresh lava and under certain conditions can see the lava entering the ocean. The flows change from day to day, so it's wise to check the status ahead of time. For current information call (800) 922-6485.

Changes at The Wigwam: Cecil Ravenswood, Wigwam vice president and general manager, says he has overhauled the five-star resort's stables and staff. At last report, they were far below the Wigwam's par; but look for new wranglers and new horses the next time you're at this well-cared-for Arizona resort.

While still at the Wigwam: If you know how to dodge the summer heat, The Wigwam is offering golf packages from $59 per person, double, and $89 per night, single, May 25 through Sept. 15. It's no secret, but early morning tee times are the best bet.

Locally: Los Laureles is getting into the golf act with a "Winter Golf Package." Courses offered include Del Monte, Poppy Hills, Carmel Valley Ranch, Rancho Canada and Laguna Seca. Rates are attractive, but we suggest a scouting expedition to pick the room or suite of your choice.

Four Sisters Inn news: Add the Blue Lantern Inn at Dana Point near Laguna Niguel to this respected family of small inns that includes The Gosby House, Green Gables and Petite Auberge. The Blue Lantern, which opened Nov. 2, has two winter packages that range from $110 to $190 depending on the day of the week. They include ocean view rooms with fireplaces, dinner for two and a whale watching excursion. Good to March 31, some restrictions apply. Call (714) 661-1304.

Hawaii calls: Aloha Airlines and its sister commuter carrier, Aloha Island Air, have new timetables so check with a travel agent on what's current. This is important to those hopping around the islands. Reason for celebration: On Maui, Aloha Airlines is now berthed in the new terminal building at Kahului Airport and Aloha Island Air is in the new Honolulu commuter terminal.

There may be a dinner train running from Salinas to San Jose if Transisco, owner-operators of the Sierra 49er Express, can get permission from Amtrak. More on this as it develops.

If you departed Terminal One at Phoenix's Sky Harbor Airport the last time you flew Southwest, now is the time to pause and rejoice. Southwest, no frills but practical fares, now departs from Terminal Four. With the move, Herb Kelleher, chairman of Southwest's board had this to say, "With the closing of Terminal One, a chapter of Phoenix history is coming to a close." He can say that again.

DORIS DAY'S BEST FRIENDS

By Doris Day

Healing wounds

ALTHOUGH WE urge cat owners to keep their feline friends indoors, we also realize that sometimes it just isn't possible. However, when cats are free to roam outdoors they can be caught in a battle with a neighborhood bully and end up with serious puncture wounds and deep scratches.

While the wounds may heal quickly by themselves, bacteria can become trapped in the tissues, resulting in an abscess. The skin may appear red, hot and swollen as infection forms and the area can become very painful.

Punctures, cat bites and scratches are particularly difficult to locate because they are often small wounds covered by the cat's hair. However, your cat's behavior should tell you that he's not feeling his best. He may even refuse to eat and totally lack energy.

If you know that your cat has been bitten or scratched, or if you suspect it because of his strange behavior, you should see your veterinarian immediately. Treatment of an abscess depends on the severity and location of the wound, as well as how long it has been infected. Surgical cleaning of the wound often is necessary, sometimes including the insertion of a rubber drain beneath the skin to help the healing process. Antibiotic medication usually is necessary to fight infection.

So, to protect your kitty from traffic and other animals, please try to keep him inside. If you can't, be aware of the dangers and watch for signs that your kitty may need help.

KIDNEY FAILURE A DANGER TO YOUR PET

Kidney failure is the most common cause of death in older dogs. You can help to prevent this problem by becoming aware of your older pet's changing needs and the symptoms of kidney failure.

Diet is the single most important factor in slowing the aging process of the kidneys. A puppy should receive a good diet early in life for normal kidney development. By mid-life, 7 to 8 years, a diet change should occur. Your dog will require less protein than a rapidly developing puppy. Only a certain amount of protein is needed for normal tissue repair. Excess protein is broken down and filtered by the kidneys. It is this excess work that shortens the normal life of a kidney. That's why a high-quality, low-protein diet is so important to an older dog. A prescription food like Hill's K/D is excellent and one that your veterinarian would probably recommend.

Be aware of the early symptoms of kidney failure:

1. Increased thirst and urination
2. Weight loss
3. Vomiting
4. Offensive breath
5. Pain and difficulty in movement

Contact your veterinarian if your pet shows signs of these symptoms. To properly diagnose failing kidneys, a physical exam, blood test and urinalysis may be necessary. And don't despair — a dog suffering from chronic kidney failure still may have many happy years ahead of him with proper treatment.

HUMANE EDUCATION AT HOME AND IN OUR SCHOOLS

Although children seem to have a natural attraction to animals, they need guidance to learn their proper care and treatment. With careful and patient instruction, your child will realize that pets are different from stuffed teddy bears and require special care.

Even very young children should learn about animals. Begin by teaching your 2- or 3-year-old the proper way to hold and pet your dog or cat, but allow this only in an adult's presence.

Preschoolers can share in the basics of pet care. Helping to prepare your pet's meals or providing fresh water daily helps children begin to understand responsibility and what pets need to live healthy lives. School-age children can help groom and exercise your pets.

Humane education is equally important in the classroom. Many concerned teachers use their own resources to bring this vital information to our children.

One of our pet foundation members is Margaret Pyciak, principal of Frost Elementary School in Jackson, Mich. We'd like to share part of a letter we received from her:

"I have a sixth-grade teacher, Mrs. Laura Wilcox, who has done a tremendous job of teaching units of study to our student body on the Humane Treatment of Animals. She uses local resource people who come into the classrooms to discuss the care and treatment of animals, and she has made it possible to have an assembly with wild as well as tame animals. She uses small and large interaction sessions with her students who have grown in sensitivity to animals as well as their peers. Mrs. Wilcox has done so much for our school and students that I feel she needs recognition for her efforts."

We're grateful to Mrs. Wilcox and her colleagues who care enough to give so generously of their time and energy to foster this awareness in our children. Those who are lucky enough to have parents and educators sensitive to the needs of our Best Friends will be the animal rights activists of tomorrow!

SOS

We are desperately looking for a temporary or permanent home for two beautiful golden retrievers, male and female, whose owner recently perished in a fire in Pacific Grove. These dogs are companions and partners and must be placed together. If you have love in your heart and room in your home, please call 625-4017.

By Tina-Marie Glatt

The Crisco Kid

WITH THE Me-Decade behind us, people are climbing out from the protective shells of their BMWs and are once again taking issue with causes that affect the welfare of this nation.

Some topics without a voice, however, are still being ignored. Let's talk lard.

Lard has taken a bad rap in the health-conscious '80s and '90s, almost to the point of being banned from our vocabulary.

I for one am here to stand up in its defense and proclaim, "I like lard."

Yes, I may be a singular voice, but I am pro-lard."

Firstly, what is lard?

According to Webster's New World Dictionary, "Lard is the fat of hogs melted down and clarified."

But to me (and to Orson Welles, a great lard aficionado), lard is a friend. Lest we forget, lard is what made McDonalds' French fries the greatest in the land.

Even the most fervent anti-lardist must admit the fries have lost a certain je ne sais quoi since McDonalds began substituting heart-conscious vegetable oil in place of our beloved animal fat.

However, there is a solution which should please both sides caught up in the lard issue of health versus taste:

Manufacturers should come out with a lard substitute. It could be called, for example, Lard-Lite.

The ad campaign could go something like: "Half the fat but all the flavor of your regular lard," or "Be a Smarty, Care for Your Art'ry."

Lard-Lite would bring back all the joy of our noxious dietary past. In unison, people across suburbia would reach down into the nether regions of their cupboards, and dust off their treasured kitchen appliance from the '70s: Our portable "Fry Daddy" and "Fry Baby" deep fryers would once again take their rightful place on our formica countertops next to the Salad Shooter, Ginsu knives and the Veg-o-Matic.

"Mmmm, these deep-fried doughnuts sure taste lard-filled," smiling faces would satisfy-ly proclaim, as sleeves reached to wipe lingering oil from their chins.

Restaurants could get in on the act too. Across the nation "Lily Lard Emporium" franchises would spring up. Their catchy slogan, "We Got Your Lard" would be on the lips of lard lovers near and far.

Hostesses could serve up lovely lard creations for guests: lard balls wrapped in bacon and deep fried chunks 'o lard (cooked in lard, of course!). Thai lovers could have lard on a stick served with peanut sauce. Szechwuan cuisine's Kung-Pao Lard would be the hot-ticket item on the Pu Pu platter. And liposuction soufflé, offering the finest aged vintage lard from France and nearby medical facilities, would be the gourmet's favorite.

For those still ashamed of admitting to their craving, don't worry, there is an answer.

Warm, excess lard can be poured off into a baking pan and chilled. This hardened lard is then cut into squares.

Decorate a plate with a dolly and a sprig of parsley. Place the hardened lard squares in a pleasing arrangement and serve.

Voila - TOFU!

The finished presentation is guaranteed to fool all your family and friends into thinking that the lard on your dish is instead the ultimate vegetarian health food.

With lard, it's simple, fun and easy.

Lard is as American as apple pie (you don't think the pie's crust got so flakey with just water, do you?)

An oath has even been written in its honor.

Hand clutching heart, ready, begin:

I pledge allegiance to the lard
And the Crisco tin it comes in,
And to the heart-muscle
For which it constricts
One myocardial infarction
With liberty from breath
And angina for all.

Amen. Pass the salt.

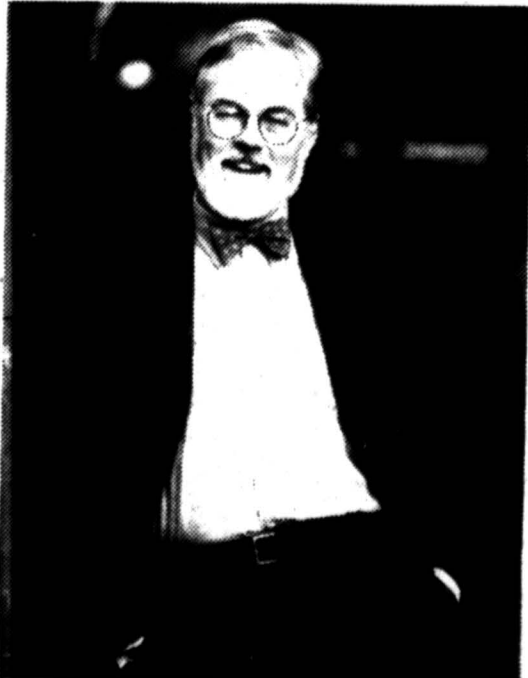

"This 'bear' floor just doesn't cut it."

Village voices

WHEN ENID Sales, Carmel Residents Association Citizen of the Year, was asked what she remembered most about the old days in Carmel she threw back her head and laughed.

"That's the problem, I remember too much!"

Enid, described by Jim Holliday of the CRA as a "caring fighter" calls herself a preservationist. Her leadership and determination to save Carmel's historic houses and architecture have moved projects such as the restoration of the Flanders Mansion and First Murphy House off the drawing boards and into reality. She is also spearheading a historic survey and inventory of the housing stock in Carmel.

Enid remembers the Mission Ranch when it was a dairy in the early '30s. She also remembers when the cabins (a recent bone of contention between preservationists and Clint Eastwood), were built. Clint has announced plans to tear the cabins down and replace them. Enid doesn't approve. Her opinion? "Mission Ranch is going to become Quail Lodge by the River."

Barney Laiolo, former mayor (1968-1972, 1980-1982), remembers Carmel as a working man's town. Four plumbers, five electricians (Barney was one of them), a lumber yard, cabinet shop and the Village Hardware store; in the old tradition of hardware stores where you could lose yourself for days. The full complement of the city's finest was seven policemen. Barney looks back to Kip's Market and the "smoke shop" up the street and ponders, "We've lost all that. How do we get it back?"

Men's clothier Howard Bruhn grew up in Carmel and claims he and his chums could travel the entire business district without touching the ground. The rascals would skip, rooftop to rooftop, from one end of Ocean Avenue to the other. Howard says the '30s in Carmel may not have been the real world for a child growing up but it was a marvelous place to be.

"More camaraderie, more closeness," is how Marjory Lloyd, former Pine Cone editor, sees the good old days. She qualifies her statement with the fact that there were fewer people in Carmel then.

Barbara Lachmund has lived in Carmel for 60 years. Her mother moved here in 1900. Barbara remembers a simpler life.

"People weren't so money oriented then. We enjoyed the environment, the squirrels, raccoons and birds and spent time at the beach every day. Values were different then; we lived a simpler life."

Peyton March of Peyton's Place restaurant worked downtown at Glennon's men's store and could get a parking place any time of the day or night. Putnam and Ragget was the only department store in town and when Peyton walked to the post office he would see half the people he knew. Houses sold for $10,000 and that included the furnishings down to the linens.

What happened to the idyllic life these Carmel residents so fondly remember? Opinions vary on the specific event or chain of events that triggered the change, but rents on Ocean Avenue shot up, freezing the resident businesses out. One store went from a modest $800 a month rent to $3,200 overnight. Land values increased and an artificial market was created. Big chain stores moved in, with big money to invest in property, sometimes just for the tax write-off. There was an influx of new residents who immediately wanted to preserve the waning charm of their village.

A burgeoning population creates change by its mere existence. Attempting to recapture a bygone era is risky business and often results in an artificial and contrived atmosphere. Witness the new "Carmel cottages" on San Antonio Street.

But there are a few merchants and tradesmen still clinging to the rocks, even though each new tide of development threatens to wash them out to sea, or more likely, into Carmel Valley.

Downtown Carmel is a tourist mecca but one enterprising young merchant has decided to buck the trend. Gerry Paddock is carrying on the tradition and catering to the trades and local residents at Ironwood Welding, located on Junipero between Third and Fourth. Gerry specializes in welding and ornamental ironwork and repairs household appliances and tools; anything that needs welding. He has a local clientele but sees the condominium project slated for Fourth and Junipero as the kind of progress that will force him out.

count, Patriots versus Scuds, the coming ground war. What a way to start the day.

Eva decided to turn things around in her own way. A simple thing, a letter to the troops expressing her support. Then she decided to share her morning-brightening idea with her Jazzercise friends. Eva brought yellow writing paper and envelopes to the dai-

TELEVISION is our primary source for the latest information on the war in the Persian Gulf, but has our ability to distinguish between reality and docu-drama become blurred by years of conditioning in front of the video screen? Can we discern accurate or dispassionate television journalism when it's interrupted by a beer commercial?

The national networks call it "America At War" and "The Gulf Crisis" and in doing so relegate the conflict in the Persian Gulf to the status of a made-for-TV mini-series. Trendy TV graphics have been created and we all have our favorite commentator: Dan Rather, Peter Jennings, Garick Utley, Tom Brokaw. But there are no celebrity names, no list of credits. Only a contrived plot. The players are our sons and daughters, brothers, sisters, husbands and wives.

Pentagon PR staffers have labeled the stages of the steadily escalating conflict "Operation Desert Shield" and "Operation Desert Storm." What will the next episodic euphemism be? We watch and wait. This is a real war and it is really happening, all day, all night, not just at prime viewing time.

Pray for peace.

MARCH 1 is the date for "Peace is Poetic," a reading by Monterey Peninsula poets, writers and storytellers, to be held at Lecture Forum 103 at MPC at 7 p.m. Jointly sponsored by the National Writers Union, Thunderbird Bookstore, The New Forum and MPC, the reading is meant to be cathartic for both participants and listeners. Moderator and poet Don Marsh of Carmel Valley lists 11 readers including Ric Masten, Ashley Ramsden, Bonnie Gartshore and 10-year-old Amy Melton.

Big Sur artist Heidi Hybl wore black fishnet stockings with seams up the back and matching gloves. Heidi didn't bother to check her seams though, she was too busy boppin' to the Broadway Blues Band and our own Pointless Sisters.

Event coordinator Joanna Pryor coaxed her friends Jackie Menke and Teresa Kraft (Teresa later played bass guitar as backup for the Pointless Sisters), into wearing full-length formals to the "Sweetheart Ball." Joanna completed her turquoise date-night ensemble with white gloves and not-so-white jogging shoes.

All the men at my table wore red neckties and "Revlon Red" smackers on their cheeks. The kisses were put there by the luscious lips of obliging Valentines, with the assistance of Dorothy McEwen, who loaned out her high-tech mini lipstick compact.

Sheriff Norm Hicks took his cue and crowned Judy Glanville queen of the "Sweetheart Ball." Judy had pumped life into the cavernous Hidden Valley theater with balloons, heart-shaped topiary trees on each table and spring flowers.

Sweethearts and valentines enjoyed local wines, a gourmet spread from Michael Jones' Moveable Feast with help from Jon Kasky's Bird of Paradise Catering. Everyone had gone through the buffet line once and were sitting back, satisfied, when Jones made an announcement. "Come back. It's time for seconds!" We'll be back.

LOST IN CARMEL

Carmel Business Association members get the most out of their mixers. They arrive early, leave late, make eye contact and pass out a quota of business cards. And they wear name tags.

Clint Eastwood came to the CBA mixer held at the new Pine Cone offices and wore a name tag. He also autographed a slew of "Put Your Business on the Map" listing games for Carmel business owners. The game was intended to help members put themselves on the Carmel map but stumped many who never did figure out the rules. But who cares about rules if you have an Eastwood autograph?

FOOD FLASH!!

Don't be a sheep. Be a ram. Chinese New Year celebrates the official "Year of the Ram" and members of the AIWF (American Institute of Food and Wine) will toast the new ewe at The Inn at Spanish Bay Friday, Feb. 15.

COMING OF AGE

By Jennifer Dyer

Winter Ball

IT ALL starts during the first week of January. Girls suddenly realize that it's that time again and they start doing things differently.

Some dress a little nicer, in color-coordinated, cleanly pressed clothes, while others spend their evenings giving their hair the age-old 100 strokes until it "glistens like the early morning sun dawning on a new day." Guys have a terrifying revelation that they have to ask some girl out and spend more time polishing their car than doing their homework. They start shaving every morning, and actually use cologne, so that special someone will say "um...um...OK, yeah, I'll go. Is it Dutch?"

The frightening result of all this frenzied preparation is Winter Ball, which is essentially a dressed-down Prom in January. Most dances are seasonal at Carmel High. In the fall, we have Homecoming, which is a fun, casually dressed event. In the early spring, we also have Sadie Hawkins', another casual dance to which the girls ask the guys. The highlight of the four dances is Prom, which is held in the late spring and is for upperclassmen only. Winter ball is a semi-formal winter dance to which the girls wear nice dresses and the guys wear suits. Prom is an all-out formal extravaganza to which guys wear tuxedos and the girls wear fancy party dresses. Some students actually rent limousines to take them from dinner to the dance. Winter Ball is just as much fun as Prom, but cheaper.

This year's dance was held Jan. 26, a Saturday evening, at the lovely Doubletree Hotel in Monterey. Dedicated student body officers decorated the De Anza Ballroom with shiny silver and evergreen balloons, placed fresh flowers on the oval tables, and provided a disk jockey to play everyone's favorite music. The dance floor was clean and "parqueted," big enough for 200 students to dance at once. The music man brought his own set of flashing lights and special effects, which brought a fun and exciting environment to the elegant room as well as giving the hard-working dancers the incentive to keep on rockin' 'til the last beat.

From 8 p.m. until midnight, we danced in the dancesteps of our parents and their parents before them, rocking and rolling, shaking and shimmying, twisting and shouting, strolling and waltzing. When all was said and done, after the last car left the parking garage, after the last thank-you was said, and after the last good night kiss was shared, we knew our curfews were looming. Our parents waited anxiously for our returns beside clocks or with watches as their parents and parents before them had waited. It seemed like a never-ending story.

But when Monday came, everything was back to normal. The familiar halls were crowded with rushing students, hurriedly dressed and academically panicked. The fun and games were done and over with, and everyone was going back to the old routine. Girls no longer worried about luring a guy to ask them to the dance, and guys no longer worried about finding a girl who would say yes. We were just teenagers again, stomping and shoving our merry way from class to class, as our parents and their parents before them had done.

THIS & THAT

By Florence Mason

A winner, positively

TURNING THINGS around from negative to positive is a daily challenge for Officer Micheal Calhoun of the Carmel Police Department. It is also the source of his greatest satisfaction on the job, and one of the reasons why he was selected as the CPD's 1990 "Officer of the Year."

"A local all the way," Officer Calhoun was born and raised in Pacific Grove and graduated from Pacific Grove High School. After getting a degree in the administration of justice at MPC he became a reserve officer for Pacific Grove. When he finished formal training at the Mott Training Center at Asilomar (a program primarily for training rangers, it is the equivalent of the Gavilan program for police officers), it was the Carmel Police Department that had an opening. That was in August 1984. In the years since then, according to Police Chief Jack McGilvray, "Officer Calhoun has earned the respect of the community, his peers, supervisors and members of other law enforcement agencies."

The enthusiasm with which Officer Calhoun speaks of his work will give you some idea of how he earned that respect. "It's exciting! I really like Carmel, the atmosphere, and I get to meet lots of nice people."

"Exciting?" I asked. He understood the question. "I know," he said, smiling. "Everyone has the opinion that because you are working in Carmel, it's not so stressful, but it can take one minute of one day when you meet a person on a negative basis. And it's exciting to me because I enjoy dealing in the various aspects of the law, the courts, and other police agencies. That's what got me into this field."

I asked him if being a native of the Monterey Peninsula sometimes made it difficult for him to deal with people — friends,

"No," he said, "true friends treat you as you want them to treat you, and you do the same; it's never been a problem."

This dark-haired, boyish-looking but serious 29-year-old officer particularly likes the Carmel department because of its relatively small size: "There's a nice feeling; we all know each other well and work well together." In fact it was Carmel Police Capt. Don Fuselier, teaching at the Mott Training Center, who urged Mike Calhoun to apply in Carmel.

I pulled out my usual interview question: "Is there anything about your job you don't like, that you would eliminate if you could?" I expected him to say "writing reports" or something similar. But after a long pause while he gave the question his serious attention, he said, "I can't think of anything. I feel so comfortable here." On further reflection, he added: "I suppose I could say that I don't like having to deal with people on a negative basis, but that's my job!"

That took us back to the heart of his work as he sees it: turning situations from negative to positive. One example: a car struck a pedestrian and the driver seemed to resent Officer Calhoun and his questions (the pedestrian was OK and did not want to pursue the incident). The challenge Calhoun felt was to create a positive relationship with the driver, and he accomplished that.

Carmel also gives its officers many opportunities to work with residents and visitors. That reminded Officer Calhoun of one of his favorite local sights — John Madden, tooting around town on a moped, with a big cigar in his mouth and a wide smile for all. "I spend most of my time with residents, not tourists," Calhoun said, "probably about 75 percent of the time it's people I see every day. I like that."

Testifying to his thought that at any time, anything can happen, Officer Calhoun spoke with satisfaction of his role at the time of last year's murder-suicide at a local motel. He happened to be watch commander that day and was in charge of the scene. Chief McGilvray's commendation is to the point: "His professionalism and sound operational knowledge of field tactics were recently tested when he responded to a violent shooting incident and supervised the investigation to its successful conclusion."

In his private life, Calhoun is the devoted father of Christina, now 5. He and his wife have separated. Leisure-time activities center on sports and physical fitness. Here again there is a connection with his profession, as he has been a fitness advisor for the police department since the start of its Wellness Program, and he teaches defense tactics.

He also paints — houses, furniture, cars. It's both a hobby and supplemental income, used originally to help finance his schooling.

And in a way he calls "ironic," it led to his solving a Carmel PD case, quite unexpectedly.

While he was working in a body shop, he was approached by a man who wanted an estimate for repairs to his recently damaged car. The owner of the shop not being there, Calhoun suggested that the man return the next day. But the next morning when he reported for duty, Officer Calhoun read the report of a hit-and-run accident in Carmel which involved a car resembling that of the man who had been in the shop. When the man returned, Calhoun the car painter engaged him in conversation about the damage to his car, until finally the man caught on: he was telling this to an off-duty Carmel Police officer! Calhoun convinced the man to make a report to the police department, which he did. "He even laughed about it," Officer Calhoun told me, still surprised. And the man came back to the same shop to have the work done, muttering something about "Of all the body shops I might have picked out..."

In Officer Calhoun's immediate future are the department's plans for a task force for skateboarders and a program he wants to get going to teach defense tactics to local women.

In those things, as always, this deserving Officer of the Year will be accentuating the positive.

I HAVE a new "favorite" eating place, joining quite a long list of other local favorites. It's the Caddyshack Cafe, in the Court of the Golden Bough off Ocean Avenue. The rating from several sets of house guests: "Great!"

This is a small place, pleasantly decorated with a golfing theme. The service is first-rate: unobtrusive but attentive. The food is excellent. On my first visit I sampled a seafood pasta, which was delicious, and I also looked with interest upon my niece's "skewered shrimp." On my second visit, I ordered that and it, too, was excellent. Also hot, which I appreciate, and the servings were generous. The only thing that might be improved is the green salad: the greens are fresh but ordinary and there is nothing to dress it up. The second time around I ordered soup instead; it was a fine leek soup that warmed the cockles.

Caddyshack, the name a tribute to the interests and previous part-time employment of owner/chef Christian Viollaz, opens for lunch at 11 a.m. and closes after dinner at 10 p.m. The prices are modest. The entrees are more varied than I suggested by my first two choices: filet mignon, which attracted one of my guests, and such things as frog legs and rack of lamb to be considered for future visits. Last time we all shared an excellent hot apple tart, which barely won over crepes and other delights on the dessert menu.

Our waitress's reaction to our "Give my compliments to the chef" routine was such a big smile that it wasn't hard to elicit the information that we were being served by Jena Viollaz, wife of said chef. They do have a good thing going.

MY LATEST question-asked-while-I'm-out-walking in Carmel, this one by a group of well-dressed tourists in a large car: "Where are all the mansions?" After subjecting them to a mini-lecture on the character of Carmel, I directed them to Pebble Beach and the 17-Mile Drive.

Gulf war prompts pet foster care

The SPCA of Monterey County, a Humane Society, has created an "animal foster care" list in case there should be a major troop call-up of military personnel at Fort Ord during the current Middle East crisis.

Local residents who are able to care for animals of military personnel who are called up are urged to contact the SPCA's Community Outreach Services Department, 373-2631, or 422-4721, ext. 221.

Information will be maintained by the SPCA for those military personnel needing assistance.

The SPCA will incur no liability in matching the foster home with the military personnel nor can the SPCA determine the length of stay for the animal.

YOUTH NOTES By Pat Lenz

Time loves a hero

Children have more need of models than of critics

Gustave Flaubert

ALL OF us have heroes or people that we idolized at one time in our lives, be it a movie star, an athlete, a relative, or maybe even a politician. I know a lot of kids who idolize Dan Quayle!

I was able to meet one of my heroes recently, Julius Erving, better known as Dr. J. I grew up watching him dominate the sport of basketball. He's the distinguished elder statesman of the sport and a better person would be hard to find. It was a brief meeting, but it meant a lot just to shake his hand. I challenged him to a game of one-on-one but he chickened out. Probably me being 8 inches shorter than him and having white man's disease intimidated him.

It used to be easy to have heroes, famous people were put up on a pedestal and could do no wrong. Nowadays kids have a hard time picking an idol or role model. Celebrities are put under a microscope and a lot of them just can't handle the pressure.

I asked a group of kids who work out in the youth center weight room who their idols are. Their first choice was the coach, but once he left, they told me their real choices. Some gave the obvious answers, like Joe Montana, Arnold Schwarzenegger, Bo Jackson. Some mentioned their mothers or fathers, and one person who shall remain nameless said he idolized his mirror. Quite a few of the kids couldn't think of anyone, which isn't surprising.

Just look at the celebrities in sports and the entertainment field. Many of them are being admitted into substance abuse programs, some are being arrested for fighting in bars. One of the biggest heroes in the last 20 years, Pete Rose, was just released from prison. Then there is a big role model in Jose Canseco, who charges people $30 for his autograph, he carries that gun in his car to keep those 10-year-olds from getting a free autograph. Then there are great role models in music like Madonna, Michael Jackson (no relation to Bo), whose body was rebuilt by Dr. Frankenstein (no relation to Dr. J), and Milli Vanilli, which needs no further explanation.

The way things are going in this world, now, more than ever, kids need role models. We as adults, especially those in high visibility professions, have an obligation to lead by example. But maybe someone wasn't too far off in saying he idolized his mirror, taking everything into consideration, that wouldn't be such a bad choice. See Matt, I told you I wouldn't tell anyone that you said that.

A great way to spend your Saturday morning with your kids is at the Thunderbird book store in The Barnyard, Carmel. Every Saturday at 11 a.m. educational and entertainment programs are offered to the public.

Next Sunday, Feb. 17 at 7 p.m., Robert Fulghum the author of the bestseller All I Really Need To Know I Learned in Kindergarten, will be speaking at the Monterey Conference Center's Sierra Ballroom. Tickets can be purchased at the aforementioned Thunderbird Bookstore as well as the Bookworks in Pacific Grove.

Artists shine

PENINSULA ARTISTS continue to shine at the Central Coast Art Association's 28th Bi-annual Juried show, at the Marjorie Evans Gallery at the Sunset Center.

Madeleine Roberts of Carmel was awarded first place for her oil painting "Persimmons"; Pebble Beach artist Phyllis Johnson was second with her pastel, "Winter Snow"; Ronald Bean, Carmel Valley, received third prize for his watercolor "Street Scene" and Monterey artist, Frances Sterling was fourth for her watercolor, "Dunes."

Judges for the competition were Fred Brooks and Will Bullas. The show can be viewed weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Feb. 28.

MCCULLOUGH/KERNOLL NUPTIALS

Nancy Davis McCullough, Pebble Beach resident since 1963, married Sherrick Twist Kernoll on Sunday, Dec. 2 in Healdsburg.

The wedding was in the Candlelite Music Room of the Madrona Manor Hotel, which sentimentally, was built by Nancy's great-uncle, John Alexander Paxton in the 1880s. It was registered as an historical site by the State of California and the U.S. Registry in 1986.

The bride is the daughter of C. Paxton, Sr. of San Carlos, the sister of C. Paxton Davis, Jr. of San Carlos and W. Porter Davis of Mill Valley. She is a graduate of U.C. Berkeley and has been active in educational, civic and cultural organizations for the past 27 years. Currently she is president of Art Asia Museum and a member of the Beach Club.

Mr. Kernoll is a graduate of the University of Chicago. He lived in the San Francisco Bay Area for 25 years, and retired from an aerospace company. The groom moved to Carmel Valley in 1987. He is a volunteer at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and a member of the Carmel Valley Racquet Club.

The couple will reside in Pebble Beach.

KARNER/CALLOWAY NUPTIALS

Leslie C. Karner and Sidney C. Calloway made it official Saturday, Jan. 19, marrying at Christ the King Chapel, Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

The bride is an administrative assistant at Del Monte Realty, Co., in Carmel. She is a graduate of Blackford High School in San Jose.

CARMEL ARTISTS RALLY SUPPORT FOR TROOPS

Funds for a Legacy of Honor Scholarship Fund for children of servicemen and women lost or disabled in Operation Desert Storm are being raised by artists in support of troops in the Middle East.

Each gallery participating in the endeavor is making one or more original works available for sale, with the proceeds donated to the Legacy of Honor Scholarship Fund. George Bleich of Bleich Gallery and Martin Weekly of Martin Weekly's Gallery are co-chairmen of the project.

Businesses or individuals wishing to participate in this program or who would like to serve on a committee can contact Bleich at 372-2717 or Martin Weekly at 624-6227.

BARRACUDAS PLACE 10TH IN CHAMPIONSHIP

Barracuda Aquatics placed 10th at the Zone One South Championships in San Jose Feb. 9-10. The Barracuda performance, within six points of their highest finish ever, was noteworthy because the squad of 25 swimmers was by far the smallest team in the top 10. San Jose teams sent as many as 150 swimmers. Barracuda swimmers recorded personal best times in 70 percent of their swims. Top finishers for Barracudas were:

Lorraine Dorfman

Lorraine Meadows Dorfman, a homemaker from Carmel, died Jan. 1 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was 79.

A resident of Carmel for the last 22 years, Mrs. Dorfman was born in Colony, Okla., on June 30, 1911. She was a member of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Carmel.

Survivors include a brother, Jack Meadows of Harrison, Ark.; a sister, Dorothy Stanton of Rienzi, Miss.; two nephews, and a niece.

Her husband, Julien Dorfman, died in 1966.

Memorial services will be held in Southern California. Cremation will be at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea with inurnment at Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Carmel Foundation.

Mary K. Morgan

Mary Kathleen Morgan, a homemaker from Carmel, died at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula on Jan. 2. She was 87.

Mrs. Morgan was born in Belfast, Northern Ireland, on Sept. 2, 1903.

She had been an active member of the Carmel

Presbyterian Church since 1964, when she moved to Carmel.

She leaves her sister-in-law, Hilda Lytle of Red Deer, Canada.

Her late husband was J. Fulton Morgan.

Memorial services will be held on Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Carmel Presbyterian Church. Cremation will be at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove and ashes will be scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Elizabeth Hinwood

Elizabeth Caldwell Hinwood, a resident of Carmel, died of pneumonia at Carmel Convalescent Hospital on Jan. 7. She was 91.

Born on Feb. 13, 1899, in Columbia, S.C., Mrs. Hinwood moved to Carmel four years ago from Laguna Beach.

She and her late husband, Col. Joseph H. Hinwood, lived in several places throughout the United States, including Michigan, Georgia, Hawaii, South Carolina, Oklahoma and Arizona.

She was a member of the Laguna Beach Art Association and exhibited her work at the Laguna Beach Art Festival.

She was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel.

She is survived by a son, Robert Hinwood of Carmel, eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation arrangements at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. Inurnment will be at a later date at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va., where she will be buried near her husband.

Calvin Knickerbocker

Calvin Austin Knickerbocker of Pebble Beach, a retired executive with the Carnation Milk Co., died at his home Jan. 8. He was 69.

Mr. Knickerbocker was born on June 1, 1921, in San Francisco. A resident of Pebble Beach since 1975, he moved to the area from Piedmont.

He was a veteran of the U.S. Army, serving during World War II as a liaison pilot.

He was a graduate of Stanford University and a member of the Monterey Peninsula Stanford Club. He was also an active member of Pacific Grove Rotary.

He is survived by his wife, Gloria; a daughter, Gloria Nicholson of Walnut Creek; two sons, Calvin Jr. of Piedmont and Brad of Salt Lake City; and six grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Jan. 11 at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. Burial followed in Cypress Lawn Cemetery in Colma. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Mildred H. Johnson

Mildred H. Johnson, a homemaker from Carmel Valley, died of cancer Jan. 7 at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. She was 81.

A 60-year resident of the Monterey Peninsula, Mrs. Johnson was born in Santa Barbara on Aug. 23, 1909.

She traveled extensively throughout her life and lived for short periods in Italy, France and Germany.

She is survived by two sons, Donald of Carmel Valley and Richard of Key Biscayne, Fla.; nine grandchildren; and six great grandchildren.

Her husband, Ralph Johnson, who was known as Coach Pappy and taught with the Pacific Grove school district for 34 years, died in 1968.

At her request, no services were held. The Paul Mortuary is in charge of cremation arrangements at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea. Inurnment will be at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast Building Fund or to the Ralph E. "Pappy" Johnson Scholarship Fund at Pacific Grove High School.

Abelardo O. Lara

Abelardo O. Lara, a self-employed contractor from Carmel, died at his home of cancer on Jan. 14. He was 63.

A resident of Carmel for 40 years, Mr. Lara was born in Saltillo, Mexico, on Dec. 16, 1927.

In his 40 years in the construction business, Mr. Lara was involved in many landmark projects in the Monterey Peninsula area. Most recently, he was employed on projects in Beverly Hills with his son, Abel.

He is survived by his wife of 40 years, Maria Luisa G. Lara; a daughter, Marysara Lara of Carmel; four sons, Abel of San Marino, Robert of Lafayette, Jason of Beverly Hills and Roy of Carmel; and one grandson.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey 93942.

Katharine R. Laws

Katharine Radcliff Laws of Carmel died at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula on Jan. 4. She was 91.

Born in Watsonville in 1899, Mrs. Laws was a longtime resident of Piedmont before moving to Carmel Point 22 years ago. She attended Mills College and graduated from the University of California at Berkeley in 1921. She was a member of Alpha Phi sorority.

Her survivors include a daughter, Linda McCulloch of Piedmont; a son, William Laws of Oakland; a sister, Belle MacFarlane of Carmel; four granddaughters; and twin great grandchildren.

Her husband, C.L. Brick Laws, former owner of the Oakland Oaks, died in 1971.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Practice your principles

*From the Feb. 17, 1983
Carmel Pine Cone*

Oh Almighty and Eternal God, be pleased to bless this food to our use as You bless us to Your service in the true spirit of Rotary, which is service above self.

There are approximately 1 million Rotarians and we tell the world that we believe in the truth of sharing our love for God by serving others without selfishness.

A skeptic may say to a Rotarian: "Look at the suffering and misery in this world caused by men's selfishness. What good is a Rotarian Philosophy? It hasn't made a dent."

A Rotarian can reply: "Look at this little child playing in the gutter, covered in filth and grime. We've had soap for generations. What good is soap?" The skeptic answers: "But soap does not do any good unless it is used." The Rotarian says: "You are so right!"

The good teacher is the person who first gives the good example. In case someone thinks I am putting in a plug for soap, let me say that it is not a bad idea — we all need to clean up our act. However, I really think that the principles of Rotary do the world no good unless we put them into practice in our everyday life. Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

In England, the Distressed Gentlefolk Aid Association is still going strong in its 94th year. The charity cares for nearly 400 people, average age 87, in 13 homes around the country and assists about 1,000 more in their own homes or in private nursing care. The charity's objective remains unchanged: to provide assistance to elderly people of good family and social standing who are down on their luck. Who are "gentlefolks"? Doctors, ministers, teachers, other professionals and even an actor or two. Over the years, some people have urged that the association change its name to something less class-oriented. But the general secretary, pointing out that contributions keep coming in, responds: "If it works, don't fix it."

Yettie Spiegel, of College Park, Maryland, took five years to earn her bachelor's degree in English from the University of Maryland, but she was the only graduate out of 3,700 to get a standing ovation. Why not? At age 85 she not only won her degree but earned membership in Phi Beta Kappa. She told an interviewer that her studies made her feel that "I'm not a time-waster." And: "You can't live in the past. What's gone is gone. I live for today and the future."

'Dreaming Art' show invites inspired submissions

THE FOURTH annual Dreaming Art Festival — a month-long array of programs focusing on art forms mined from the unconscious — will soon be accepting art and poetry submission for its all-media April exhibition at the Cherry Foundation in Carmel.

"Dreaming Art: Seeing the Unconscious" will feature a poetry contest reading, a gala musical, a documentary film on the life of C.G. Jung, and a 60-piece exhibit — perhaps the centerpiece of the festival.

Participants in the exhibit are encouraged to appropriate images from their psyches, dreams, visions, intuition, and body feelings, and adapt them to the medium or media of their choice. Previous exhibits combined a diverse mixture of images and elements unified by what Carl Jung called the "archetypal depths."

Poets, too, are encouraged to submit works related to the theme. Cash prizes will be awarded for first-, second-, and third-place winners. Two honorable-mention certificates will also be awarded.

Art works may be submitted beginning March 1st, and must be delivered by March 15. Submission to the exhibit is limited by space considerations, and works will be accepted on a first-come, first-serve basis. Each piece must be accompanied by a $15 entry fee.

Poetry entries also have a March 15 deadline. They must be accompanied by the poet's name, address and zipcode, telephone number, and a $6 entry fee per poem, and sent to The Cherry Foundation/ Dreaming Art: Poetry/ Box 863/ Carmel, CA 93921. Poets are limited to three poems with no more than 24 lines per poem.

Entry forms for both poetry and art submissions may be picked up at the Cherry Foundation, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel, or will be mailed on request. Call 624-7491 for further information.

The poetry reading will take place Sunday, April 28th; the art will be exhibited from April 6 through April 26. Dates for the film and musical will be announced soon.

Award-winning Italian pianist presented by Keyboard Series

ITALIAN PIANIST Benedetto Lupo will appear in recital Sunday, Feb. 17 as part of the Keyboard Artist Series at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

ON SUNDAY, Feb. 17 at 4 p.m., the Keyboard Artist Series will present the young Italian pianist, Benedetto Lupo, in recital at Sunset Theater in Carmel. A prize winner in the 1985 Robert Casadesus Competition, the 1986 Gina Bachauer Competition and the 1989 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, Lupo has had success touring in Europe and the United States during the past few years. When he appeared last year in a recital in Santa Cruz he was enthusiastically received by a large audience.

In his Carmel recital Lupo will perform two Brahms Rhapsodies, Op. 79, Schumann's Fantasiestücke, Five Scenes from Prokofiev's Romeo and Juliet, and conclude his program with the Rachmaninoff Sonata No. 2 in B-flat Minor.

A limited number of tickets from $13 to $20 are available from Center State Ticketing by calling 649-5561 or can be purchased at the Sunset Center box office on the afternoon of the performance. For further information, call Keyboard Artist Series at 624-7971.

The Dreaming Art Festival is supported in part by funding from the Monterey County Cultural Council and the City of Carmel.

Travel film series catches trains

THE WORLD Traveler Film Series continues at Sunset Theater in Carmel on Friday, Feb. 15. Railroads Are Fun, narrated by photographer Thayer Soule, will be shown at 2 p.m. and again at 8 p.m.

Railroads Are Fun is an adventure in American history, from the world's first mountain cog railroad in 1866 to Amtrak's sleek trains of today. Experience the circus trains of the 30s; the battling record snows in Donner Pass in 1952; the Strasburg Line in Pennsylvania's Amish country; a logging line in California's Sierra; the Cable Cars of San Francisco; and America's favorite narrow gauge trip from Durango to Silverton, in Colorado. This film is timeless as memory, and filled with fun, dozens of whistle stops and big sights — Chicago, Grand Canyon.

Admission for the program is $5. For further information call 624-3996. The Sunset Theater is located on San Carlos Street at Ninth in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Martin's spirit

MARTIN'S SPIRIT cannot fade; it thrives even as the occasional sniper (researcher) points out one more way in which he was solidly human and clay-footed like thee and me. The latest King Day drew no comment here because I had nothing fresh to say. Rewriting past observations would have set a drab precedent.

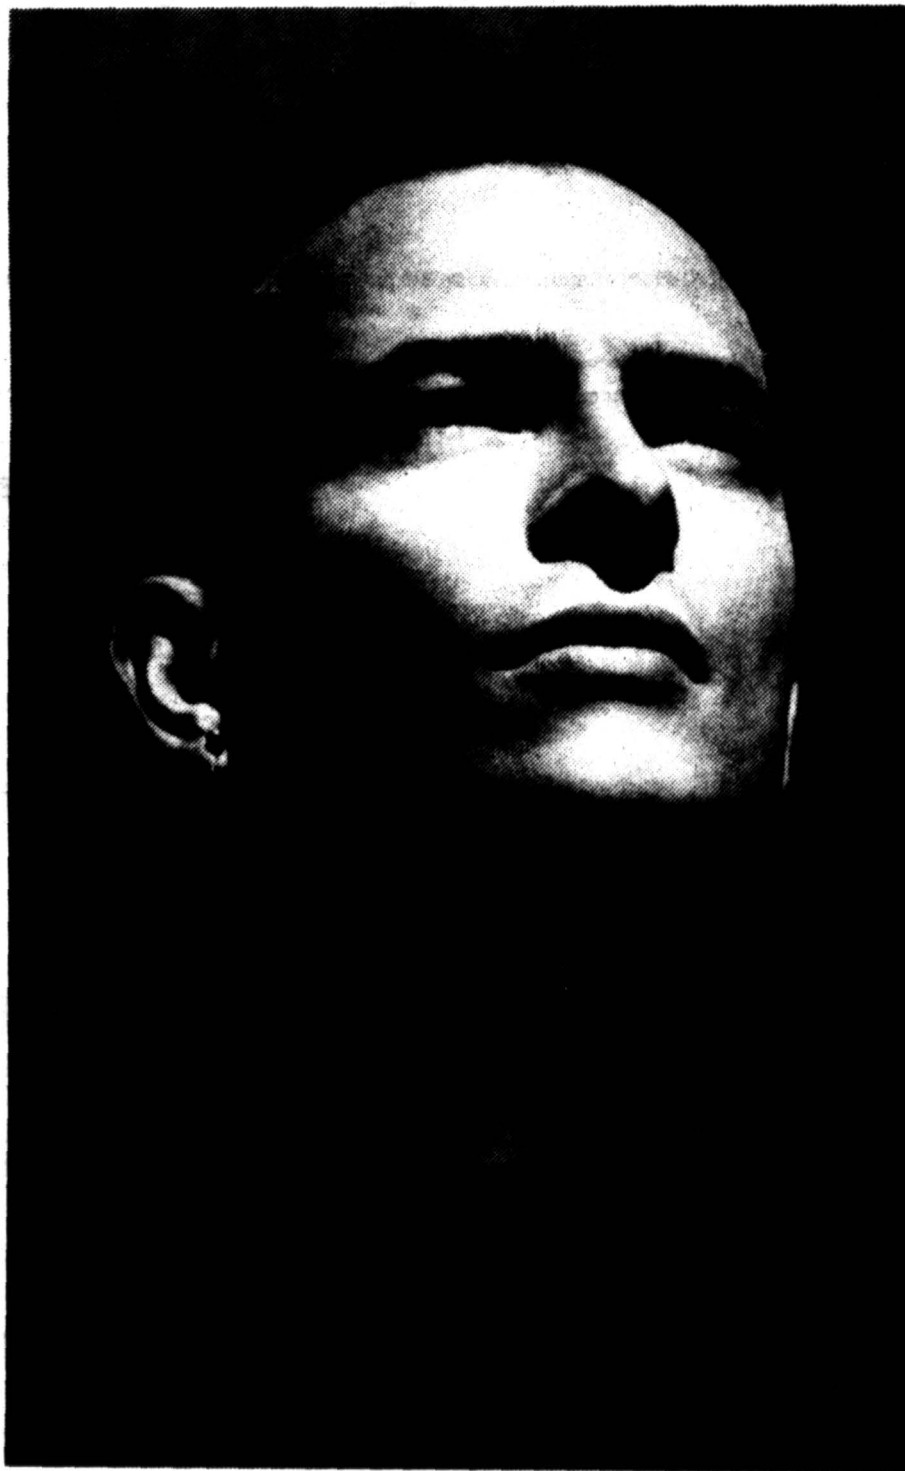

And yet the intuition remained that this sturdy and inspired man had strong feelings about the documentary resurrection music called jazz. Now comes the new CD by no-bullbleep reedman and flutist James Spaulding. It's Gotstabe A Better Way from Muse Records; the cover features quite a rich King quote.

Spaulding points out that Martin opened the 1964 Berlin Jazz Festival with these words: "Jazz speaks of life, the blues tell the stories of life's difficulties, and if you think about it for a moment, you will realize that they take the hardest realities of life and put them into music only to come out with some new hope or sense of triumph. This is triumphant music. Modern jazz has continued in this tradition, singing the songs of a more complicated urban existence. When life itself offers no order and meaning, the musician creates an order and meaning from sounds of the earth which flow through his instrument."

So this art form's more than a chops game (technical escalation). How could we have forgotten? All the chops in the world can't make the street angels and churchy funk and wild beauty come through horns. Coltrane rode his commitment into heaven itself. Honoring him and Mingus and Monk and Dolphy and Oliver Nelson today: players like Kenny Garrett, Wallace Roney, Gary Bartz, Cindy Blackman, Charles Tolliver, Geri Allen, Ray Drummond, Amina Claudine Myers.

The true sound (and such an urgency does indeed exist) relates to the African and Brazilian ways of respecting and calling in ancestors. If this seems far out, simply listen for The Cry and then track sources. The two-trumpet Chicago front line of Louis Armstrong and Joe Oliver changed the focus within everyone who could hear. For purposes of demarcation, I'd call Phil Woods a major stylist; check out the latest Donald Byrd package (with Garrett and Joe Henderson on the Landmark label) if you'd pursue those ancestral textures. These men know how to occupy the edge and then get out of the way. It's no mistake that an Ellington ballad's given plenty of time.

The Spaulding CD has Mulgrew Miller, Ron Carter, vibist Monte Croft, Ray Mantilla, Ralph Peterson. They achieve the new/old freedom sound by pondering freedom's opposite. (One more example of having the handle: very young pianist Benny Green. Especially his solos on Monk tunes.)

Gypsy jazz

FLAMENCO GUITARIST Ottmar Liebert will bring the updated sounds of his "nouveau flamenco" to Doc Ricketts' Lab Tuesday, Feb. 19. Doors open at 7:30, showtime is 8:30, with a dance band slated to play at about 10:30. Liebert blends Hungarian Gypsy music, flamenco and hot jazz a la Django Reinhardt into a new sound he's dubbed "nouveau flamenco," which is also the title of his first album, rated the number 5 New Age album for the year 1990 by Billboard magazine. Tickets are available at Doc Ricketts' (649-4241), Center Stage Ticketing, Recycled Records in New Monterey, Do Re Mi Music in The Barnyard, and at all BASS/TM locations.

EARLY COVERAGE allows folks to make budgetary decisions. Bands have been announced for the next Dixieland Monterey bash. That first weekend in March will offer Abalone Stompers (Monterey), Blue Street (Fresno), Bobby Morris New Orleans Jazz Band (Las Vegas), Cheryl Stephens Vintage Jazz Band (Arizona), Chicago Six (San Diego), Creole Jazz Kings (Turlock), Dixieland Express (British Columbia), High Sierra (Three Rivers), Natural Gas (San Rafael), Night Blooming Jazzmen (Los Angeles), Professor Plum (Los Gatos), Rent Party Revellers (Pennsylvania), South Frisco (El Toro), South Market (San Diego), Uncle Yoke's Black Dogs (Florida). The fest office — 177 Webster in Monterey.

Meanwhile, local flugelhornist Jackie Coon and banjo pro Ed Erickson have signed on for Bill Graham's third annual New Orleans by the Bay at Shoreline Amphitheater (Mountain View). Trad jazz, Cajun, gospel come May (5/18-19). Some other acts: Fats Domino, Queen Ida and her Bon Temps Zydeco Band, Zenith New Orleans Parade Band, Katie Webster, Oakland Interfaith Gospel Choir, California Cajun Orchestra, Al Rapone, Myrick Guillory, Roy Rogers and the Delta Rhythm Kings.

It's pledged that legendary chef Paul Prudhomme again will set up his Louisiana Kitchen — foodstuffs flown in from the Crescent City. Ticketmaster.

THIS YEAR'S Grammy show will be televised live from New York on Wednesday night (2/20) over CBS. For jazz buffs, the instrumental solo nominees include Stan Getz, George Benson, Branford Marsalis, Miles Davis and Oscar Peterson.

Unsimple respect says Art Blakey's last album should cop the group instrumental prize — but who knows? These choices too: Branford, Oscar, Max Roach and Dizzy working together, Wynton Marsalis.

Big band — Louis Bellson, Basie Orchestra, Lionel Hampton, Mel Lewis gang playing Thad Jones composition, Bob Florence Limited Edition. Female jazz vocals — Carmen, Ella, Betty Carter, Peggy Lee, Diane Reeves. I'm rooting for Miss McRae's all-Monk album; she took the challenge and performed brilliantly.

Entirely subjective picks — Getz in fusion instrumental, Jon Hendricks, John Lee Hooker with Miles and Roy Rogers, Koko Taylor. No preference in the polka category.

IT WAS NOTED here last time that Concord Records had contracted with jazz portrait artist Bruni Sablan for two cover paintings of late guitarist Emily Remler. Bruni has since learned that both albums will be released in March — "one of standards and the other concentrating on original material."

KUUMBWA JAZZ Center of Santa Cruz boasts master guitarist Joe Pass on Monday night (2/18). Shows at 7:30 and 9:30. Costs $13.50 per. Center Stage Ticketing.

Doc Ricketts' Lab on Cannery Row promises guitarists Ottmar Liebert (2/19) and Robben Ford (2/24).

Sister Deola Booker and friends will send up gospel sounds on Friday evening (2/15) as part of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars series. Doors open at 7:30; tickets ($10 apiece) available there. (Richie Cole was scheduled for March 15. Series coordinator Richard Armbrust says Richie cancelled — no replacement announced as yet.)

Singer Kevin Feeney's group plays the Monterey Bay Club on Friday and Saturday nights (2/15-16).

Monterey Church (Science of Mind Center) spotlights Papa Jake and those Abalone Stompers in concert Friday night (2/15). Seven o'clock kick — food and door prizes as well. At 400 West Franklin near downtown.

Recommended night sounds — Flugelhornist Brian Stock and pals at Pacific Grove's Portofino Coffee House (Sundays), Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra at Mission Ranch Barn (Mondays), The Firehouse jams hosted by bassist Norm Ross (Thursdays and Saturdays), blazing trumpet man Ron Coolidge's unit at Shanty Malone's (Tuesdays) followed by Jackie Coon and Dottie Dodgion's crew (Thursdays through Saturdays), blues jams at Monterey Brewing Company (Sundays). Drummer John Goldsmith — with Coolidge — deserves all the attention we can muster.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

Romance, shmomance...

THE MONTEREY PENINSULA College Drama Department is staging two one-act musicals under the combined title of Romance, Romance. The first takes place in Fin de Siecle Vienna and involves two jaded people who resort to disguise to find ... romance. The second takes place in Long Island and involves the dalliance of a man and woman, both married to others, in quest for, you guessed it, romance!

Viennese Torte

The first work is called The Little Comedy and little it is in many ways. Alfred is bored. Josefine is bored. They've both done the Viennese Upper Crust Singles scene for so long they can't stand the thought of it anymore. They simultaneously, but unbeknownst to each other, hit upon a brilliant idea; they will pretend to be simple unpretentious folk and cruise the promenade in disguise looking for wholesome partners. They, of course, find each other and the rest is ignorant bliss until...

Bryce Lord is properly stuffy as Alfred von Wilmers; Nancy Lerner is suitably cynical as Josefine Weninger. Two figures in white, played by Michael Pina and Jessica Ann Stevenson and representing the ephemeral nature of romance — the euphoria and disillusionment — waltz through the set between scenes. The overall effect is one that is too, too precious for words. Posing as plebians for pickups; how terribly droll. The dancers in white look more curious than complimentary. Bryce Lord and Nancy Lerner try to inject some energy into the piece, but it still doesn't work. Not one tune could I remember at the intermission.

Yuppie lust
THE SECOND PIECE is entitled Summer Share in which two couples, friends of long standing, rent a summer place in the Hamptons for their mutual enjoyment. The husband of one couple and the wife of the other have been platonic friends for a long time. This point is belabored. The dramatic premise is that beneath all this Platonism is a Dionysian streak a mile wide: they're hot for each other. Endless evening conversations debate this point. They finally get up the courage to ... but then ... and the rest you'll have to see for yourself. The lovers are again Nancy Lerner and Bryce Lord, looking more at ease in jeans and sneakers. They exude genuine passion and writhe with realistic guilt as they creep toward concupiscence. Jessica Ann Stevenson and Michael Pina play the miscellaneous spouses in a suitably subordinate style. Their grand moment comes in the one toe-tappin' tune of the evening, a funny number that shows us what old age will bring if we don't step lively while we can. Sort of a "use it or lose it" tune.

Patrick Spike is the director of Romance, Romance. In the program guide he tells of discovering the show in an Off-Broadway theater where, after the lavish Broadway productions he'd seen, this show's simplicity and charm made him fall in love with it. In my opinion, the show didn't travel well. There is too much that is outmoded and forced. It may look better if you encounter it after being sated with Broadway productions, but that can hardly be considered a possibility for most viewers. Mr. Spike does get good performances from his actors but the show as a whole remains his private vision.

The musicians were Barbara Souza, Heidi Toy, and Dean Winston. They performed well in their precarious loft. The choreographer, Sherri Shaw, was responsible for much good terpsichorean display. Book and lyrics are by Barry Harmon, music is by Keith Herrmann. Romance, Romance plays through Feb. 16 only, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8 p.m. in the SRO Theater off the Monterey Peninsula College Main Stage.

MICHAEL PINA and Jessica Ann Stevenson play the leading roles in Romance-Romance. The Monterey Peninsula College production is now playing in the SRO Theatre on campus. For tickets, call 646-4213 or 649-5561. (Patrick Spike photo).

Monterey County Symphony: impeccable playing

IT WAS VERY refreshing Sunday afternoon in King Hall of the Naval Postgraduate School, to hear a conductor take on the naked role of soloist in front of his own orchestra and have him demonstrate that he still retains the performing skill he demands from his musicians.

In order to accomplish this, the Monterey County Symphony had to have a guest conductor and in the person of Volkmar Fritsche they found one of great musical experience and polish. Leading a program of German classical and romantic music, he brought out the full competence and professionalism of the orchestra, extending the particularly fine impression they made last month in their all-Russian program when they were under the baton of their usual maestro Clark Suttle.

Maestro Fritsche, who only had three rehearsals with the orchestra, began the program with an impressive performance of the Gospel means good news

FEBRUARY IS Black History Month and the Feb. 15 concert at Hidden Valley Theatre will pay tribute to the meaning of equality, freedom and justice for all people. Sister Deola Booker "and Friends" will demonstrate the history of black music, which includes everything from spirituals to some roof-raising gospel music. Tickets to the 8 p.m. performance are $10. Hidden Valley is located 11.2 miles east of Highway 1 on Carmel Valley Road in Carmel Valley. For more information, call 659-3115.

the harpsichord continuo to come through.

The afternoon concluded with a commanding interpretation of the Schumann Symphony No. 4 in D Minor op. 120. The first movement began sparsely with precise, yet clear shaping and led into an Allegro which was played with verve and attentive responses to the drama and excitement which Fritsche found so fittingly appropriate to the score. It was quite a colorful atmosphere and very vividly contrasted to the classical lightness of the concerto.

The meditative quality of the ensuing Romanza was well expressed and the solos by the first oboe, cello and concertmaster were very well played. The stormy but controlled Scherzo was marked with lively, emphatic rhythms and the trio was swaying and gracefully romantic.

The build up of intensity leading into the last movement was very eloquently constructed and the impeccable playing, particularly in the string fugue was noteworthy. The orchestra was cohesive and their concentration was intense. The tone was strongly propelled, exploiting the full resources of the players, bringing the symphony to an exciting conclusion.

When Maestro Fritsche returned in response to the appreciative applause, the orchestra applauded him also and refused to share his spotlight however much they had contributed to the luster of the results. But it was a heartwarming touch.

Uncut Russian 'Solaris' screened

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will present the complete, uncut version of Andrei Tarkovsky's 1972 production, Solaris.

Made in the U.S.S.R., the award-winning film will be shown in the original Cinemascope, version with new subtitles.

Solaris is a mysterious, remote planet under observation from an orbiting space station. Its surface covered by a great ocean reveals not only an immense intelligence but also an ability to create and mimic its investigators.

Solaris will be shown in Russian with English subtitles, Friday through Sunday, Feb. 15-17.

It begins at 8:15 p.m. in the Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $4 general, $3 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 626-1730.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Grammy, shammy

THE GRAMMY Awards will be televised on Wednesday (CBS, Feb. 20, 8-11 p.m.), and oooh, I bet you just can't wait.

After all, these are the same folks who awarded the Grammy for Best New Artist last year to...the envelope please...Milli Vanilli. (Cue sound of eggs breaking.) And these are the same folks who just can't seem fit to bestow awards to people like Bob Dylan, the Rolling Stones, The Who, Bruce Springsteen and for crying out loud, even Elvis Presley, who seemed to be able to only win in the Gospel category (what, no award for Best Novelty Song?).

And if to make amends, this year the governing body of the Grammys, National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences (sounds like it belongs in the Smithsonian along with the other ancient artifacts), has seen fit to bestow a Lifetime Achievement Award on Dylan, who has received short shrift from the academy over the years.

Well, one thing is for sure, they won't have Sinead O'Connor to kick around this year. She's opted to pull out of the event and not accept an award even if she wins because of the "false and destructive materialistic values" of the recording industry. Maybe they can get Andrew Dice Clay to fill in at the last minute.

The Grammys used to mean something, well at least there was a certain sense of anticipation and excitement as to who would win on Grammy night, as well as a few welcome surprises. Now the only excitement is in the occasional acts that rise above all the hype and hubris and the hilarious and topical comments by the show's host for the past few years — Billy Crystal.

Unfortunately this year, we don't even have that. Crystal is being replaced by Garry Shandling, which is actually not a bad trade. But we still have Lite-Popsters Mariah Carey, Phil Collins, Wilson Phillips, Bette Midler, Quincy Jones and Whitney Houston to contend with (they've all been nominated and some will perform).

We can only hope that the Red Hot Chili Peppers will perform and add a little spice to the proceedings.

DOC RICKETTS' Lab continues to bring in top-notch recording acts...and the audience is starting to respond.

Witness Monday night's packed and boisterous house for two zydeco bands of all things — C.J. Chenier and The Red Hot Louisiana Band and Buckwheat Zydeco. Granted, not your run-of-the-mill zydeco bands, but nevertheless a strong showing for local audiences and hope for local live music fans.

Even at $15 a head the joint was jammed with revelers; perhaps Mardi Gras and the party atmosphere it engenders helped the gate, but even so, a good turnout for a Monday night.

And both C.J. and the boys and Buckwheat were up to form, both playing blistering sets of good-time bayou party music that had the dance floor jumpin' and hoppin' all night. Buckwheat finished his set off with versions of the classic Route 66, his own Waitin' for My Ya-Ya and the Stones' Beast of Burden.

Just down the street at the Monterey Brewing Company two local bands (the Gil Rubio Band and Sonic Graffiti), drew ample and enthusiastic crowds. Who says the peninsula music scene is dead?

Next up for the Monterey Brewing Company are local modern rockers Bombay, fronted by former Medfly and Jet member Dale Kurokawa and former Jet bandmate and Time Troops member David Lewis, Sunday, Feb. 17 and Friday, Feb. 22. (I wonder if Dale is getting tired of being referred to as a former Medfly? Sounds like a bad sci-fi horror movie.)

Haven't had a chance to catch the band lately, but the last time I saw them at The Club in mid-1990 they were in fine fettle — tight, tasty and tuneful. Well worth checking out.

Back down the street at Doc's Texas singer/songwriter Jerry Jeff Walker will hold court for two shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. with fellow labelmate (on Rykodisc) Chris Wall opening. Both are touring in support of new albums, Walker with his Navajo Rug and Wall with Honky Tonk Heart.

Walker is perhaps best known for the classic 1973 live album Viva Terlingua and songs such as Mr. Bojangles, L.A. Freeway, Desperadoes Waiting for a Train, London Homesick Blues, and Up Against the Wall, Redneck Mother.

His band, formerly The Lost Gonzo Band, have been redubbed The Gonzo Survivor, which is exactly what Walker is, a former reckless outlaw cowboy crooner (one of the first), who has cleaned up his act and taken it back on the road. It's good to see him back.

The following night, Feb. 19, Doc's will feature "nouveau flamenco" guitarist Ottmar Liebert. His first recording, Nouveau Flamenco was rated the No. 5 New Age album of 1990 by Billboard magazine and locally his album was the best-seller at The Barnyard's Do Re Mi Music in 1990.

The German-born resident of Santa Fe, N.M. fuses Hungarian Gypsy music with flamenco and hot jazz a la Django Reinhardt into new stylistic blend that has brought him a lot of success. Liebert will play one set at 8:30 p.m., with a dance band slated to start up at 10:31 (yes, 10:31, don't ask).

RECOMMENDATION OF THE Week: See The Silence of the Lambs with Jodie Foster, Anthony Hopkins and Scott Glenn, directed by Jonathan Demme (Something Wild, Melvin & Howard, and Married to the Mob), and opening Thursday, Feb. 14 at the Golden Bough Theater in Carmel.

It's a throat-grabbing, palm-sweating, chair-gripping thriller, with Foster as a perceptive FBI trainee and Hopkins as the brilliant, but consummately evil serial killer Dr. Hannibal "The Cannibal" Lecter. The continually underrated Hopkins himself is brilliant and deserves some kind of recognition at award time (unfortunately that won't come until later in 1991).

Proceed with caution.

Talk Radio

Eric Bogosian's Talk Radio opens the 1990-91 theater season at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center.

Previews are scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Feb. 21-22. An opening night gala with wine and refreshments is set Saturday, Feb. 23, also at 8 p.m. The production will run 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays until March 16. Cafe seating opens one hour before showtime, with a variety of sandwiches, hors d'oeuvres, desserts, beer, wine and soft drinks available before the show and at intermission.

The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is located at 320 Hoffman (between Lighthouse and Hawthorne) in New Monterey.

Ticket prices on Thursdays and Fridays are $8 general and $6 for students, seniors and military. Tickets prices on Saturdays are $10 general and $8 for students, seniors and military. Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For reservations, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852.

ABINANTE MUSIC 372-5893

Own your own piano! Abinante Music is now featuring the Yamaha YPP-50 Personal Piano. It comes with 76 full-size keys for your own personal hands. Eight realistic instrument sounds and built-in speakers for your own personal ears. And for your own personal wallet, a special price from Abinante Music. Just mention this ad, and Abinante will reduce the $1095 retail price to just $995! Abinante Music, 425 Alvarado Street, Downtown Monterey.

ALOISIA'S PET GROOMING

655-2124

No assembly-line treatment for your pet. Open, airy, loving environment. Call for an appointment today. Pets groomed to the classic standards of each breed—unless owners specify otherwise. Careful consultation. Complimentary flea dip with each grooming. 327-B Lighthouse in Monterey (next to Consuelo's). Plenty of free off-street parking.

DETRO BOOK

372-1376

St. Andrews Press announces publication of the latest poetry book by local jazz columnist and broadcaster John Detoro. It's St. Joseph's Blues. His quest could turn our culture upside down. Annie Dillard says: "...wonderful fine stuff." Daniel Berrigan: "...a beat missed by semi-comatose hearts." $10. Available at Books Inc. in Carmel (three stores west of Mission on Ocean), Bookworks of Pacific Grove, The Book End at 245 Pearl in Monterey. Or use the above number to order signed copies.

YOUTH MUSIC MONTEREY 375-1992

Affiliated with the Monterey Jazz Festival, runs the three-week Summer Music Monterey Jazz Camp at RLS for young musicians. Instruction in Combos, Big Bands, Improvisation, Theory, History and Jazz Solo Voice is offered, taught by some of the finest jazz artists in the profession.

Broadway's Best!

The GroveMont Theater will open a dinner-theater production of a new musical theater revue, Broadway's Best!, at the Mission Ranch Party Barn in Carmel.

The dinner-theater production will open on Thursday, Feb. 14 and will run Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through March 24. Dinner seating runs from 6 to 7:30 nightly with the musical beginning at 8 p.m.

Broadway's Best! is a musical retrospective featuring hits from the 10 Tony Award-winning Broadway musicals of the past 10 years. The show features Laura Akard, Eleanor Wylde, Carl Palme and John Newkirk, who also directs the production.

Tickets are $25 for dinner and show. A limited number of show-only tickets are available for $10 each. Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561. For reservations, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852.

Savage in Limbo

John Patrick Shanley's concert play, Savage in Limbo, will inaugurate the Big Sur Players' third season with a two-week dinner-theater engagement at the Big Sur River Inn.

Opening Thursday, Feb. 21, Savage in Limbo will play through Saturday, Feb. 23 and open again Wednesday, Feb. 27 and play through Saturday, March 2.

Dinner is at 7 p.m. and curtain is at 8:45 p.m.

Shanley, Academy Award-winning author of Moonstruck, has gathered five 32-year-old characters in a Bronx bar. They've known each other most of their lives, or so they think. Tonight a weird secret is revealed, and all hell breaks loose.

Savage in Limbo is directed by Val Hendrickson. The cast includes Lorraine Olsen, Kim Candler, Mark Hudson, J. Perham Slate and Alison Faul.

For ticket information, call 373-7713.

Romance/Romance

A musical featuring two separate love stories, Romance/Romance continues in the SRO Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. Final performances are set at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 14-16.

The first act is comprised of a fairytale romance set in turn-of-the-century Vienna. The second act relates a modern-day romance about two couples vacationing in the Hamptons of New York.

Playing the leads in both acts are Bryce Lord as Alfred/Sam and Nancy Lamer as Josephine/Monica. Michael Pina and Jessica Ann Stevenson play the supporting roles.

Directed by Patrick Spike, Romance/Romance has book and lyrics by Barry Harman and music by Keith Herrmann. Sherrie Shaw is the choreographer and Barbara Savage is the musical director.

Tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, and the MPC box office, 646-4213. The play's run will be extended if requests for tickets warrant.

The Drunkard

California's First Theater will revive the legendary melodrama, The Drunkard.

This play, reminding folk of the evils of drink, premiered at California's First Theater in the 1930s and went on to Los Angeles for a 27-year run.

Richard Barratt, former owner of Carmel's Studio Theatre, will play the lead role with Marabee Boone taking the part of his devoted wife, Mary. The dastardly villain is played by Chris Kirk. Other cast members include Steve, Debbie and Emily MacDonald, Dawn Lowery, Russ Linch and Patrick Kitt. The Drunkard is produced and directed by Laverne Seeman.

Performances are at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

California's First Theatre is located at the corner of Scott and Pacific streets in historic downtown Monterey.

Seating is at 7:30 p.m. for the 8 p.m. curtain on Fridays and Saturdays.

A frequent question

"WHERE HAVE you been?" is the question posed frequently by M. Lafont (Alan Smith) to Clotilde (Marlie Avant) in La Parisienne. Henri Becque's 19th century black comedy concludes its run this weekend at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. For reservations, call 624-1531.

Tickets are $7 for adults, $5.50 for seniors and teens and $4.50 for subteens. The theater box office is open 1 to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Thursdays and 1 to 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

For tickets or information, call 375-4916 or 649-5561.

The Owl and the Pussycat

Bill Manhoff's comedy, The Owl and the Pussycat, is a joint offering of the Forest Theatre Guild and The Frohman Academy.

The comedy chronicles a roundabout route to love between a San Francisco author and the shady lady he spies on. The cast features James Brady and Michelle Savage. The Owl and the Pussycat is directed by Michael Cheak.

Final performances are set at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 15-17. The Wharf Theatre is located on Old Fisherman's Wharf No. 1 in Monterey.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children. For tickets, call 625-9900 or 649-5561.

La Parisienne

A black comedy of 19th century morals framed within the story of a very proper, real-life Parisian matron forms the foundation for La Parisienne. The sly wit of playwright Henri Becque dissects bourgeoisie life in the 1890s, domestic and bureaucratic, without using a single unseemly word.

The Staff Players Repertory Company brings Becque's triumph to the stage of the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

Final performances are set at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15-16.

The Indoor Forest Theater stage is located under the main stage of Carmel's historic Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are recommended. Call the Staff Players at 624-1531 or Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Where else would you have a traditional Seafood Buffet?

For over 90 years, the Pine Inn has been Carmel's home of tradition. And while we've seen many changes over the years, we're proud to note that we're still the traditional home for the Friday Night Seafood Buffet. So come join us for an unsurpassed selection of seafood, along with a vast variety of other tempting dishes and a generous helping of tradition.

Where the warmth of tradition meets the pleasures of today.

CITY COUNCIL CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA ORDINANCE NO. 91-02

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA AMENDING SECTION 10.32.140 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE REGARDING THE ISSUANCE OF RESIDENT PARKING PERMITS

WHEREAS, the adopted General Plan of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, Policy 2-19, reads that the City "explore and define a resident parking permit system which would limit residential parking areas to residents and their invitees;" and

WHEREAS, General Plan Policy 1-3 reads that the City should "consider prohibiting on-street parking in certain areas of the R-1 district for nonresidential purposes as part of a citywide parking management program;" and

WHEREAS, Section 22507 of the California Vehicle Code permits local authorities to establish by Resolution preferential parking privileges for residents and their guests under a permit program; and

WHEREAS, Section 10.32.140 of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Municipal Code provides for certain parking exemptions for residents of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea;

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

Chapter 10.32. (STOPPING, STANDING AND PARKING), Section 10.32.140 of the Municipal Code shall be amended to read:

10.32.140 Resident permit parking. It is the purpose of this section to establish for residents or owners of residential property (R-1, R-4) within the corporate limits of the city, a permit parking system in the commercial and residential districts.

and Section 10.32.140, Paragraph A.2. be amended to read:

2. Vehicles bearing current residential parking permit stickers shall be allowed to be parked along Scenic Road at all times, and in those areas of the residential district designated by resolution and properly posted for resident permit parking.

and that Chapter 10.68 (NO PARKING AREAS) be amended adding Section 10.68.020 to read as follows:

10.68.020 No parking without permit in certain areas of the residential district. It is unlawful for any person to stop, stand or park any vehicle in any area designated as "resident permit parking" without such permit displayed on the vehicle where appropriate signs are erected by authorization by the City Council.

PASSED, AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 5th day of February, 1991, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: Councilmembers: Brooks, Fischer, White, Wright, Grace; NOES: Councilmembers: None; ABSENT: Councilmembers: None

BE MY VALENTINE

A HEARTWARMING home, stunningly renovated and decorated, within couple of blocks of Carmel Mission and with a smashing view of Point Lobos from every level. A sun-flooded patio leads you to the front door, and once inside, you'll long to place your cherished possessions to their best advantage. You'll love the dream kitchen with its chef's stove and state-of-the-art appliances. There are three bedrooms on the main floor, and downstairs are a two-room guest suite connected to the main floor by an elevator, and a separate studio. $1,495,000.

THE LARGEST VALENTINE

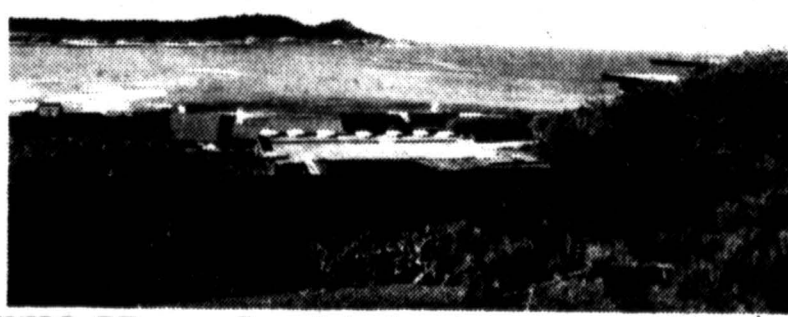

FOR YOUR FAMILY would be this custom-built home on an oversized lot in Carmel's coveted south of Ocean Avenue area. There's a big living room with fireplace and pleasant garden outlook, and next to it is a big kitchen-family room, also with fireplace — giving you a choice of places in which to entertain. Also on the main floor is a luxurious master suite. Upstairs are two big bedrooms, along with generous bonus space (office, sewing room?) under the eaves. $1,350,000.

IT'S A SWEETHEART

HANDSOME, remodeled home with a DETACHED STUDIO in Carmel's Paradise Park, ready for you to move in right away. An inviting entry leads to a good-sized living room (20 by 16) with fireplace in a semi-alcove, beyond which is a gleaming new designer kitchen you're sure to find absolutely captivating. A master bedroom leads to a private bricked patio in the rear, and there is also another comfortable bedroom. And for worry-free living, there is new wiring, new roof, new plumbing, and new furnace. $445,000.

BE MINE

WILL BE your first thought when you see this Carmel Meadows home with its unusually fine view across the ocean to Point Lobos. The house, with its convenient floor plan, features a big living room with fireplace, dining room, den with raised hearth fireplace, and kitchen, along with three bedrooms and three baths. The entrance foyer is big enough to serve as a breakfast room or as an adjunct for entertaining. A terrace runs the width of the house, and affords a water view. $750,000.
